From deserts wild and many a pathless wood
Of savage climes where I have wandered long, Whose hills and streams are yet ungraced by song,
I bring, illustrious friend, this garland rude.
The offering, tho. uncouth, in kindly mood Thou will regard, if haply there should be
'Mong meaner things the flower simplicity, Fresh from coy Nature's virgin solitude

1878
23rd X mo. IV Left Morija at 8.15 this morning & in 3½ hours crossed the Little Caledon river & subsisted on its banks for 2½ hours surrounded by groups of Basutos and native mounted police on their way to the place of meeting tomorrow. Another 1½ hour from the river brought us into Masere where we were invited to take up our quarters with one of the principal traders Richard Frower (Independent) agent of Robt. King of Grahamstown. We called on Griffiths the Governors Agent & delivered him the letter of introduction from the Colonial Office. His deputy Rolland whom he introduced was with him & in answer to I Sharps enquiry suggested the public school room as the most likely place for a religious meeting tomorrow evening at six o'clock: freely granting its use. Rolland is an ex-French missionary, a magistrate & superintendent of public education. & in Griffiths absence acts as Govt Agent

We also called on a young trader Eugene Martin to whom our friend A Mabille volunteered a letter of introduction supposing he as the son of a missionary would be glad to entertain us, but "his house was very small & full". We also called on R" Holden another trader (Wesleyan) to whom Parsonon of Thaba 'Nchu had given me a letter of introduction. He & his wife seemed pleased with the call & said they had seen a notice of us in the Bloemfontein paper of thursday last They feel the want of a minister of their own denomination think the French missionaries devote themselves too exclusively to the natives neglecting the whites; so that they are obliged to associate themselves with the ritualistic Episcopalians who whilst receiving their support, refuse to admit them to communion as long as they retain their membership in the Wesleyan body: which distinction in an out of the way and mixed assemblage like this in Masera is usually set aside

24·X V We were introduced to several of the French missionaries this morning whom we had not seen before including Dyke this son Henry Dyke who has charge of the School Dr Casalis, Old Mr Maitin father of the trader here - Dr Dorion, & Verner a Swiss gentleman on a visit

The time fixed for the great annual meeting was eleven o'clock. Many had arrived yesterday but about nine o'clock this morning a vast column of horsemen was seen approaching; their sure-footed little steeds mounting the rocky eminences without a stumble - We were invited to the platform or raised stoop under a verandah where also the missionaries were seated on either side the Governor's Agent. About 3,000 Basutos were there & the Agent Griffiths opened the proceedings with a short speech and alluded to the disturbed state of other parts of the Colony; some of whom had been asked to give up their guns, & perhaps they would be asked to give up theirs. When people had guns they got to fighting with them like the Galekas & Gaikas

He said he had received a letter or petition or rather found it in his office when he arrived here from a few chiefs. The letter being read to the assembly in Sesuto. The Agent got up again & said now that is the most impertinent letter that was ever written to the Queen's Government, and if I had been in the office when the man brought that letter

I should have thrown it in his face and kicked him out of the office. The men who have written that letter are rebels: they are pretending to teach the Government how they are to rule the country but the Queen is not going to be taught by such as that. There are always some discontented ones in a community; but these are not the words of the true Basutos. &c. You can now say whether you agree with that letter or you disown any part in it. He spoke through a native interpreter. Many natives followed, but as there speeches were not interpreted we could not understand what was said, but it was interesting to observe the effect on the audience as the hills resounded their vociferous assent or dissent: and to notice the gesture with which they spoke or rather assisted their speech. Tsekelo, who was once concerned in cattle stealing and got into the trunk for it; when he came out said there was not a prison in the country fit to put a gentleman in — said something for which the people seemed to be dead set against him. It seems he was the author of the petition but seeing it had brought Griffith into their midst was backing out & trying to screen himself. He had got Letsea to sign it without knowing what was in it. Although a younger son of the good old Moseth he is considered a great rascal & agitator & twice conspired to kill his father who forgave him. Masupha another son of the late Moseth had some what to say. He is esteemed as a fighting general. Jonathan, son of Malaspo a brother of Moseth who considers he ought to be paramount chief before Letsea; & on which account usually sides with the Government - had something to say tho. he is not of so much account as his father notwithstanding a Cape Town education.

Letha a relative of Moseshs also gave a Speech as did Sofea who stood at my left hand & gave me the names being able to speak very good English. He is a Government official, & says if a rebellion had to break out he would be a marked man amongst them & would be sought for in every nook & corner like seeking for a needle in a sack of meal

We had written out notices for a Religious Meeting in the School Room, but got disappointed of the building & meeting owing to previous engagements connected with the great event of the day, not known to Rolland until after he had offered it

It seems last Census gave 127,000 Natives in Basuto Land. It is considered they increase more under British rule than under their own Chiefs: and that because the rights of the lowest individuals are respected as much as those of the Chief

Maseru is situated close by the banks of the Great Caledon river which separates between the Orange Free State and Basuto Land

25. X Left Maseru at nine this morning (with a Native-man guide half way across the mountain roads) VI and riding along the banks of the Great Caledon came to the ford again crossing it into the O. F. S. and in 2 hours outspanned near the top of the hill with Ladybrand in sight on the plain below (Descending the hill was a bad piece of road, & at is bottom an immense Rock under whose shadow we rested after walking down to avoid the jolts over the stones. A mountain stream ran at its foot and abundance of maiden-hair and other ferns & flowers were springing up around In another 1½ hour total 3½ hours from Maseru brought us into Ladybrand. We called on the (D R minister Maider to ask after Mrs Radloff senior but were not allowed to go any further Said Mrs Maider who opened the door herself I have heard of you & seeing you is like talking with old friends, you must stay with us. We had been saying you would not think it worth while coming to such a poor little place as Ladybrand. The singing practice was to take place in the school room at night but Mr Maider called on some of his congregation with us stating there would be a religious service instead & these are the two Quaker brethren of whom you have read from time to time in the papers. Mrs Maider is sister of Mrs Hornabrook jr of Sea Point & a brother is married to a daughter of Mrs Thompson Mr Maider was born at Morija amongst the French missionaries & for a number of years Prof John Murray of Stellenbosch was his foster father His mother had lost a son in infancy & this one succeeding was dedicated by her from his birth to be a missionary in which capacity until recently he resided at Oetsey's Hoek (Oetsey's Hoek) on the Mont Aux Sources

There were about 35 present at the meeting The Landdrost could not believe that the visit of two men to their town professedly in Christian love, was not connected with some covert object for the gaining of money; altho distinctly informed of the contrary
Ladybrand is only about 9 years old & well watered Laid out. Named after the President's wife. Mr Maider has an intelligent native Colporteur

1878 Mabolela F.M.S.

26. X VII Our guide by appointment having arrived from Mabolela to conduct us on the circuitous road over the mountains we accordingly took our departure about eleven o'clock, our two mahomedan drivers somewhat fresh with recent potations & driving us at a more rapid rate than was safe over these uneven roads, & even once got the guide & another young man travelling in our company on horseback to gallop along one on each side, whipping the mules into a frantic speed down hill & up, to the great danger of our lives with an upset.

We crossed Lady brand Spruit

Modder Poort Spruit,

Groene Kloof Spruit, and close to Mabolela Mc Kube Spruit, tho not the largest still the worst of the lot. In 3½ hours we arrived in Mabolela. The only very bad road being the really bad rocky mountain ascent close to the village or Mission Station where Mr Keck an old man & his son-in-law (Dr Casalis on a visit greeted us with a kindly welcome, which also had been conveyed to us in a christian letter brought by the guide Mabolela within the bounds of the Free State at the close of the wars of the Boers against the Basutos was secured by Sir P Woodehouse as a "Mission Station" to do what is convenient on a Mission Station" Thus indefinitely defined as to what is convenient & lawful our friend the Missionary Mr Keck says he is autocrat of the place & does not allow any one to reside on the Station who willingly breaks the rules. He does not allow any of them to hire themselves out to a neighbouring Boer going a journey on Saturdays because they do not rest on Sundays to observe to keep the day holy. He has been here 33 years and during all that time has never seen his native La Belle France & has only made about two journies to Cape Town. *

27. X I. Sharp twice addressed the natives today assembled in the chapel. We sat with the mission family within the communion rails which was one end of the long room railed off in the middle of which was the small pulpit only just large enough for one to stand in.

Keck's son-in-law (L. Casalis was the able interpreter. Rain seemed to be brewing & lightening flashing now & then & while we were sat conversing a few strong drops were heard on the iron roof which called forth the remark from our host "Oh what sweet music that is." It would take three days heavy rain now to make the water courses run the ground is so dry and thirsty. A few heavy thunder storms came & it rained steadily during the night

Note on Mabolela

The Commander of the Boer forces planted his cannon close by the mission buildings & then said to Mr Keck now you quit or take the consequences. The missionary pleaded "why should you send me away without hearing what I have got to say?" &c, After a talk talking with him in the house the Commander said, Well, here is one of my men with a bullet through his cheek see what you can do for him. Mr Keck dressed the wounded man's cheek & other things to free the Commander & his men promised them more as soon as possible. I dressed the wounded man's cheek. The Commander left him saying "well just write what you have said to me into writing". & thus it became established on a surer footing with 3000 acres secured by convention.

* The home society would have given him leave lately – "But" he remarked to my "Saviour gave me a pass/port to South Africa; but he has never given me one to return, & without it I dare not go."

1878 — Peka

" 8. X Breakfast over we adjourned into another room for family worship when J.S. read Luthers Psalm & the 103rd and feelingly addressed our host & hostess in sympathy for the many trials they have passed through in being willing to spend and be spent for the greater part of their lives here in the service of their Lord. We parted as fellow old friends & while the coach went on over the uneven ground the two old men our host and Isaac Sharp walked arm in arm for a mile or so & I with (Dr Casalis leading his horse & his son-in-law on another one going to make a visit to a family outspanned near by whose hut was burned down in the night & two children killed by the fire & another one not expected to recover. The mother had left the hut for a short while with a candle burning inside & whilst she called at the farm house near & returning in an hour found what a terrible accident had happened. We stopped to look at the scene of the disaster.

After 2½ hours we passed a little on our left the farm of Koppjes Kraal & in 1½ hour more again crossed the Caledon river into Basuto Land through a bad drift & fifteen minutes brought us to Peka or the trading residence of Edmund Richards whose grandfather Richards accompanied the late William Forster on a visit to Spain & the Channel Islands. Neither he nor his wife are Friends but inclined to them. His wife inclined to the Anglican until a young clergyman named Balfour of ritualistic tendencies wanted to confess her, coming to the house one day in her absence & seeing only her husband told him in a decided tone he had not come to see him, he only wanted to converse privately with his wife. The husband wrote to the Superior &c asking the order for the discontinuance of the visitor

Peka is the name of the mountain close by

A native evangelist resides near who sometimes helps Emily Richard with a class

Bamboo Dwelling
Mosquito Dwelling

Oh what a hideous sight I did see this afternoon — Eight young girls walking in a double row, shouting out a song to warn all of the male sex of their approach, that they may keep [illegible] contamination. Their faces, arms, legs and bodies were completely tattooed over with a powder in looking quite gay. In their hands were tiny hands of switches, on their backs a bundle of sticks & on their heads something like a small "friends bonnet" surmounted by a male burden often one individual, a round jar for water & another, a black iron pot, &c. As heathens they had been undergoing recently the circumcisional ceremony & am, mg them as women arrived at maturity & fit for the marriage bargain in so many head of cattle, according to their supposed claims. The bonnet looked in the distance like a piece of curved card board fastened with a string under the chin. When any of the other sex approach they bring this down in front of the face completely obscuring it & blocking out vision of all but the ground they are walking on. Nearer inspection proves it to be made of grass and beads. As I was a white man and did not care for their mummery this mask was left on the top of the head so that they had a full view of me and I of them. The long procession & ceremony are very catching to other heathen girls of the same age who deem to have undergone it. Mrs. Richards says she had a nurse girl hired for the year in charge of a little infant who left her charge there & then on this procession stepping to join in it was not seen by her for four months after the full ceremony was over. The infant was some hours before it was found by its mother who had no idea of the girl thus suddenly deserting her charge. The girl was married the following year

Ficksburg O.V.S.

29.X Our mules having been badly used at Kimberly detained us here today whilst they went to a Dutch farmer named Montgomery seven miles distant & went on horseback to work after them doing the fourteen miles within two hours

30.X I had a religious opportunity with Edmund & Emily Richards after breakfast this morning with encouragement & exhortation followed by prayer in taking leave they loaded us with provisions including a ham, sardines &c. &c. – left Veka about nine & once recrossing the main Caledon R. into the O.V.S. rate. Keeping the river in sight occasionally on the east in 3½ hours we reached Ficksburg close to which is Emperani farm but previous to the wars between the Boers and Basutos a Wesleyan Mission station. Mitchley whom we saw now owns it. We called on the D.R. minister R.H. vandewall an American by birth but leaving Michigan when nine years old for Europe Ficksburg is about half the size of Ladybrand & has now at the age of seven years 25 houses. From the village and district the Dutch Ref. Congregation numbers 1380 souls of whom 660 are members There are a few dissenters he says such as Anglicans & Wesleyans. We lunched with the young couple before having P.P. asked for a little quiet time together in which prayer was offered sympathizing words which seemed to be appreciated & we left them about 2.15 P.M. After 4 hours journeying we outspanned for the night after crossing what is perhaps a small stream named after the President Brandwater It was after one & after sun-set. We have passed mountain after mountain during the day & for days past have had the majestic Maluti range in sight on our right & have approached considerably nearer to them today. We crossed the Witte Bergen range through Retief's Neck a narrow passage Kloof or ravine wherein he was murdered about 12 m. from Bethlehem.

In one hour's trek this morning passed the road Brandwater Spruit; close to the Drifs is a store & dwelling & a Brighton man has a small flour mill who has been thirty years in Africa. Morning's trek 4½ hours Afternoons do 3½ do = for day 8 hours Distant from Brandwater 7 hours by mules and the horse back or cart & horses mile is reckoned half th is At a farm near I got butter at 1/- per lb. & eggs 1/- the dozen

1. XI Old Yongy aroused me at 2.30 this morning noticed VI of near four as I told him. After a cup of tea and a biscuit we had all inspanned & started by 4 A.M. and in 2 hours outspanned for breakfast not reckoning a half hours delay in taking a wrong turn in the road. Outspanned 1¾ hour till 9 A.M. Travelling again 3 hours until at last we reached the small town of Bethlehem distant from Ficksburg 17 hours by mules. We stayed a few minutes at the D R parsonage but only saw Mrs Theron. The minister would not be in until afternoon The place is as large as Ladybrand but not so ladylike We passed on 1 hour & outspanned for noon at one o'clock until 3. Then trekked 3 hours until 6 P.M. = 4 from Bethlehem. About a mile before entering Bethlehem we joined the main high road leading to it from Bloemfontein & from thence commenced a course rather more towards the East than we had been travelling.
Yesterday & today our road has taken us over hills mostly 5,600 feet above the sea level with high mountain peaks range beyond range on our right

Harrismith

2 VII. XXI. Rose at 4.30. Breakfast over and all inspanned & started at 7.15 AM.

In 3¾ hours crossed the Wilger river at a place said to be half a mile from its junction with the Elands river. The water was running in the course at the bottom which sometimes overflows its steep & deep banks. There was a punt for waggons which we did not find it needful to use. Took a two hundred yards further on there was another streamlet to cross with a punt moored on its dry banks. Another 1 hour from this brought us to a house and a chain across the road where we were charged five shillings received in government receipt for it. It seems to be charged on all conveyances entering the Orange Free State. This gate is 2¼ hours Post Cart & 15 miles short of Harrismith. We outspanned close below after having trekked during the morning 4½ hours Remained at outspan two hours till 1.45 and in 3¼ hours entered Harrismith about five o'clock and in accordance with a previous invitation whilst at Klerkensdorp where Mrs Wynne was visiting her sister Mrs Leask, we drove up to the house of the Wesleyan minister William Wynne & knocked at the door & was quickly recognised by Mrs Wynne who opened it. Our road again today has continued up to Harrismith on an elevated plateaux ranging from 5000 feet to 5500 feet.

It is exactly 12 months to day since we left Dartmouth expecting to spend only 8 months in So. Africa whilst it will take an additional quarter of a year if all is embraced that Sharp Hill has in prospect & not leave much room for Natal which is so near to Harrismith as 21 to 24 miles. The atmosphere here is exceedingly clear & the grand mountain of Platberg in front of the house seems close by as though I could walk to its base in 15 minutes and yet this base is five miles away. I am credibly informed & still I say it seems as tho' I could throw a stone half way towards it. The mountain is the highest of any within five or ten miles rises upwards of 2000 feet above the surrounding ground viz to 7,500 feet or one above the sea level Although it looks miserably flat when viewed from below still there are to be seen hills and dales lakes and streams on its surface. It is visible at a distance of 100 miles from the flat lying height of Mooi river in Natal. We see a glimpse of the Mont aux Sources but it is so far away it does not appear higher than the surrounding nearer mountains

Harrismith is the second town in size & importance on the O.V.S. has about 1200 whites & 200 natives

3·XI Both morning & evening J. Sharp had full opportunity of speaking in the Wesleyan chapel close by the house each occasion with unusual life and power

In the afternoon a third address interpreted by the minister was delivered to the scholars in the Dutch Reformed Ch. Immediately followed by service with the natives in their dry brick built chapel where a store-keeper named Sirk with some other Wesleyans like minded labour amongst them

4·XI We have sent the coach forward about 20 miles to the drift at Eland's river on the way to Witzies Hoek & Serebe Theodore Maeder brother of the minister at Ladybrand having kindly undertaken to see us on our way tomorrow by swifter horses & cart

This evening J. Sharp gave a lecture on his northern travels on behalf of the Y.M.C.A. collection at the doors amounting to £3.7.6 The Landrost was in the chair Macfarlane candidate for the Presidentship of there should be any change was there & held a basket for the collection at the door. Clark the Anglican minister seconded the vote of thanks moved by Wm Wynne. Prayer

Leave Harrismith

was offerred by the (D R minister at the opening who afterwards took a cup of coffee with us Our host His wife has been at death's door during the past week She seems very much chastened under it. In writing his name in my book he points to it saying this is my name A Calder Singer D.(D. M.G. O R & this is the meaning of the letters following it

And this is my wish Psalm 121. When you read it I hope you will think of me I preached from it last Sunday morning I told him I would remarking I think it is the one called the travellers psalm 5 XI Guy Fawkes Day: I kept even in this place composed half of English people.

Left Harrismith with Theo. Maeder in his Dog cart at 10·30 croped the Wilge river and in 2 hours reached the farm of Rudeno a good old Boer of great bulk now well to do but who commenced life with only a few sheep. We stayed an hour & drank the usual cup; in this instance tea. D.S. had a short prayer before leaving. He could speak a little English only a little & smiling said When we are above there we shall understand (each other) there is not the langue of Babel there. And when D.S. had quoted for him the text Hereby we the spirit of Christ by his Spirit which he hath given us. He said Yes, I know; I got him — feel it here. In 1 hour from this farm we reached our coach outspanned on the banks of Eland river & got our lunch remaining about two hours ordering the coach to go forward to the next farm in the morning six or eight miles & await orders 2 hours more were elapsed for the night outside Witzies Hoek at the farm residence of the Commandant Cornelius Jacobs, built close beneath the end of the Witte Bergen about three miles to the right of the main road leading to the Hoek in which spot the chief Mosperi & his followers have their residence. Mosperi is one of the sons of the late Moseth. until lately Mr Maeder of Ladybrand was their missionary which office has been vacant for nearly a year

6. XI IV In less than two hours this morning the Commandant & Theo. Maeder drove us round the rough butt or mountain end of Witte Bergen into Witzies Hoek to the mission Station now in charge of a native evangelist. There is a good little house & church & situated by a large rock of the size of the church itself called in the Sesuto language Lepika which simply signifyes rock & from this the mission Station takes its name — the Rock of Ages as our guide said. The mission which is in the hands of the A. Ref.ch has about 10,000 acres made over to it. A span of ten oxen, 100 goats & a cape waggon are on the premises awaiting a claimant in the shape of a new missionary Mosperi & his people have perhaps about 150,000 acres also within the bounds of the O F State of very fine cultivable land. It is situated about 6,000 feet above the sea level surrounded immediately by the Witte Bergen & further off the grand & rugged Berg range with the Mont aux Sources distinctly visible 25 or 20 miles away & rising to heights of 11,000 feet with a small peak still higher viz 11,300 feet as lately shown by Rutenberg. It was old Dr Casalis who named the Mont aux Sources from its being a central divisional point dividing down its three deep sides Natal, Basuto Land, and the Orange Vrij Staat and also the source of the Orange River, the Tugela river & the Elan[d] river flowing in three opposite directions. Elands were plentiful at one time & gave name to the river and there is still a herd of fifty getting less & less as they are hunted & killed sometimes only for their skins We alighted at the vacant house of the mission where the key was found hung outside by the considerate people against our arrival; our guide remarked they would only do a thing of that sort for a missionary He had gone many times they had never hung it there for him altho. he is the brother of their late missionary & son of a missionary to boot; being born bred at Morijan. Mosheri this son who has received a good finishing education at the S. A College in Cape Town soon came & offered their greetings. At eleven o'clock the bell rung & about 200 assembled in the church mostly sitting in their own style on the floor I Maeder was reader, interpreter for D. Sharp some hymns were sung & prayer offered twice The service lasted about an hour & the people were attentive.

Jacobina, an old woman who was formerly in the mission family now married said - "I am glad such men are going about encouraging the missionaries to do their work." D. Sharp replied "She has hit the nail on the head; for that is just what I felt it my duty to do before leaving home; also to encourage those amongst whom they labour. We afterwards visited her square-built hut, which was very neat & clean the walls coloured

Witzies Hoek is full 40 miles from Harrismith & can be traversed by cart & horses in about 6 hours, or 7 hours which it took us without reckoning outspans. Witzie is the name of a Chief who once lived in the Hoek or head of this closed in valley, which curves round like a hook & it was his mountain refuge or fastness & since he was driven out & dispersed it has served the Basutos more than once. It commenced raining while we were here & I Mackie remarked to Sharp You will be known to them not by your own name they will forget that; but as The Old Man who brought the Rain. They will be very glad of your coming for they will think you brought it. The dry and thirsty ground received a refreshing rain of an hour or two's duration; which if followed by more now or in a day or two will ensure the corn crops now recently sown

At breakfast this morning one ostrich egg fried with butter was a good deal more than enough for ten of us & very satisfying. One is reckoned our host said, to be equal to 24 hens eggs

Langalebalele's old quarters are almost visible as we stand near the mission station

Thankfulness & gratitude is admitted on all hands both amongst missionaries & others wherever I have heard any report of the various tribes we have visited: but I Mackie says there are so many exceptions to this rule at Witzies Hoek that he considers the Basutos located here a people really grateful for any kindness shown to them. One woman's had a sick infant ready to die but the missionary doctored & nursed it up, so committee rid: on each anniversary of its recovery its mother brings him a present as a token of her appreciation of his kind offices. Dr Moffat used to be so annoyed at never receiving any thanks for his skill & medicines that he would sometimes let them go a good way off & then call them back & say - do you see that dog, if I give it a bone it wags its tail & so expresses its thanks & gratitude as well as it can. Now I have given you that medicine & you have never wagged your tail

V Left "Besters Vlei" Cornelius Jacobs The Commandant's at half past five this morning in the cart driven by Theodore Maeder to where our coach is outspanned at the Nickerks (Drift) Spruit Solomon Ruths owner D. Marks servant. In 1 hour reached the coach outspanned cart & all had breakfast followed by the usual bible reading & prayer from J.S chiefly for T.M. this invalide wife. We took leave & parted in opposite directions at 8.30 A.M. Harrismith to Nickerks Spruit is usually done by cart & pair of horses in 4 hours & from Nickerks to N'port in about 5 hours do. Our days travelling with coach & mules from Nickers occupied 7½ hours over ground for the most part nearly 6,000 feet above the sea level.

8. XI
VI Started at 7.45 this morning & in 2 hours entered the mountain pass in the Witte Bergs range known by the name of N'port which means narrow way. I went a little off the road close to the right hand where there is a good farm well planted round with willow trees owned by a Dutchman who could not speak no English named De Villiers (de Villyees) but by means of signs procured a good sized loaf for 2/- and learned the road to Brandwater

In 2 hours more we descended a steep mountain

(Naauw port)

We outspanned on their farm which is between 5,000 & 6,000 feet above the sea level. We left them about a 9r past two traversing through most magnificent mountain scenery At one time being on a ridge over 6,000 feet high & grand mountain peaks all around but the imposing Drakensbergs on our left grand beyond description: with the two highest points frequently visible

Our afternoons trek was 4 hours & we outspanned in the dusk of the evening after having purchased a couple of lean hens for a shilling each. Lightening & clouds threatening a storm & we want to cross the ~~Great~~ Little Caledon tomorrow morning before it get flooded, as it soon would do in heavy rains

Total days trek 8 hours

Lerebe

9·XI VII Rose between 4 & 5 leaving outspan at 6.45 D. had gone on ahead of the coach & took a wrong turning which lost us over an hour waiting for him, including 1 hour mornings trek was 5½ hours until we outspanned by the Brandwater river at 12.15. In 1 hour from starting this morning we crossed the again the Little Caledon river. We had no sooner outspan than thunderstorms set in but we managed to light a fire & boil a fowl leeks & potatoes quite satisfactory & a treat We were inspanned at 3 P.M. & stuck in the rivers bed in getting up the opposite bank very steep & snow rendered slippery by the showers & after an hours delay were kindly helped out of our position by Daniel Maybery Miller Hennant of Jacob Van Reenan by a span of fourteen fresh & strong oxen starting with them for a mile or so to the next hill at 4.20 & in 2 hours & 20 minutes being overtaken by the dark & coming to a farm outspanned their advice being that we should not attempt the crossing of the next drift till morning as we might stick fast in the river bed or not be able to ascend the bank of the Main Caledon River

10·XI I No more rain fell in the night & the morning opened again bright & warm but not enought to afford us fuel from the only source procurable - dried cow dung - which is all soaked with the rain. We reached Lerebe in 2 hours & found no white man about the place. Mr Colliard of course we knew was gone to the Banyai & Mr Kohll whom we expected to find was away for the day at an out-station & we despatched a messenger to inform him of our arrival as he might not be back for a day or two. We only found one Basuto who could speak English & one who could speak Dutch after sundry attempts at making ourselves understood

There is a good substantial stone house & neat chapel with gothic windows. The garden looks refreshing with some sweet roses & a nice circular summer house with vines trained up the pillars.

We sat in Sharp's tent before tea for a little quiet time together when in prayer my heart went with him & was conscious of being one of those for whom faith and strength was asked who had but just ventured to speak a word for Him &c. & afterwards he addressed me "Dear Langley I believe there is a withholding of more than is meet but it tendeth to poverty &c" I told him I believed I wanted more faith - he said yes. I said I was conscious of what he said. & that I did not want to speak a word without a right call - & what sometimes I believed the enemy crept in & made me think I should make a mistake in a quotation &c and while I was pondering upon it the opportunity would slip by. He thought it was right also to look at it in a negative question saying - am I right in letting this slip by. And what he would not say to every one; he believed the Lord would pardon any little overstepping if done simply in earnestness for his cause &c. And what did Hepburn say to thee at Shoshong when we were together "Open your mouth & I will fill it." Hepburn was a man whom knows who had passed through it all himself. I remarked Hepburn was a man who in talking with me had done me more good in a brotherly "elderly" manner after "friend" than any one I knew.

Leribé

11 XI About ten o'clock this morning J. Kohler his wife with Fr. J. Vernet of Geneva arrived on horseback leaving the moveable house alias wagon containing the children nurses &c to follow them as quickly as oxen could travel they arrived an hour before sun down such the difference in speed. We were soon invited to lunch with them rooms set apart for us, mine is the study lately occupied by Colliard Mr Kohler's station was at Cana the left it to come to Leribé when Mr Colliard went to the Bamyi Cana at present has only a native evangelist & so it is doubtful whether it would be any good our going there as at one time that of Our young Swiss friend Vernet (a theological student) is visiting (shortly on his way to the Zambesi) all the Basuto French mission stations seems interested in the work of the Moravians at Labrador Greenland &c. A pleasant evening was spent in conversation, & a meeting with the natives arranged for tomorrow morning.

12 XI Before Mr Kohler came home we had bought a muid or pack of mealies for the mules On asking how much I had to pay him the man claimed £1.15.0 I said this is rather dear we only paid £1.10.0 for the last. However he stuck to his price knew we were strangers in his hands & must have the mealies were ignorant of the value with them. Mr Kohler heard of it & was annoyed at hearing a professor on his station should have so far overreached as to charge us 15/- too much & spoke to the man telling him he ought not to have taken advantage of us it was his place to refund the 15/- But the man had got the price & meant to stick to it. This morning when a number of them were assembling at the Chapel door he spoke to them in strong terms about the wrongs of over reaching found that one of his prominent native officials in the chapel defended the transaction & seeing that they were all of one spirit The missionary said to them I cannot agree that these Friends who have come here for your good & for the good of the missionaries & not for trade, shall have a meeting with you today — you may disperse. He then came & told us what he had done, which I hope will be a good lesson for them

13·XI IV Busy map-making. & Sharp unwell with face-neuralgia

14·XI V J.S. still unwell - feverish in night - better in forenoon Got him some eucalyptus leaves boiled with the bark. He drank a little bathed with the rest & was relieved. Afterwards I bathed his spine &c with acetic acid. These & other remedies have made the pain bearable towards evening. We had intended leaving at noon but this & some fine steady rain have occured to prevent

15 & 16 XI VII J.S.'s mouth & neck were swelled yesterday so as to affect his speech He is quite weak & frequently foments with the blue gum leaves & bark which here are abundant His monthly letter is a task to get through which he thought he would be able to get through this morning. I have had a little rheumatism in my right knee since we have been here

17·XI I Rain yesterday & today. J.S. addressed the people this morning & afternoon. tho he is still weak

There is a woman Mossuto native a true albino white woolley hair & light eyes with raw light complexion not nice to look upon. Superstition caused her to decline letting me have a specimen of her hair altho a professing christian fearing lest some evil should be worked against her with it altho. Mrs Kohler told her she would cut some of her own hair off & lay them together.

At the last Census of Basuto Land there were 127,000 Basutos - of whom only 5,000 were so far converted to Christianity as to be admitted into Church Membership by baptism

18.XI " O.S. not being strong enough, & the weather rainy at noon we have remained still at Leribe with our friends the Kohlers 19.XI " After dinner D.S. read two verses from the bible & knelt in prayer & we took our departure from Fred^k Kohler & his wife after our prolonged stay of nine days, at 1 P.M. In 2 hours reached the banks of the river Hlotsoa now three feet deep with recent showers & a broad rapid stream with steep banks on both sides. It took us ½ an hour to get quite across: our casks floated off their hooks under the back of the coach, & we lost completely one blacking brush. Abdol stripped & waded through to try the ford. This river is sometimes rendered impassable for a day or two by heavy rain.

We outspanned for the night 1½ hour from the river During the afternoon I began gathering mushrooms which all joined in when we observed a good scattering. We got three or four pounds which I stewed with some butter preserved milk & & we relished our first mushroom feast in S. Africa amazingly.

20.XI " Left our night's outspan at 7.40 A.M. peking 4 hours till 11.40 & resting 2^h 20^m until 2 P.M. In 2 hours we reached the river Pulisiana about the same size as the Hlotsoa but with worse banks steep twisting water worn ruts quite in danger of telling the coach over. We occupied ½ an hour crossing & in 1¼ hour afterwards reached Cana the station lately occupied by our friend Fred^k Kohler until he took " Collard's place at Leribé.

Leribé to Cana by horse-back or light cart & pair of horses is reckoned to take only 5 hours. But the road winds & twines to all points of the compass round & through the mountains & we took 12½ hours but not knowing the road, probably lost an hour or two by it & the last hour were overtaken by a heavy thunderstorm with large hail-stones which hitting the mules in their faces blown by a strong wind made

SOCIETY OF FRIENDS.

— On Friday, the 3rd, the "Meeting for Sufferings," or representative committee of the Society, was held in London. Several committees reported, and a minute of sympathy with Mr. Isaac Sharp in his arduous religious labours in South Africa was passed.

— On the 6th, the London Quarterly Meeting on ministry and oversight was held. Kingston Monthly Meeting reported that they had recorded Mr. George Linney as a minister of the Gospel. On Tuesday, the 7th, the London Quarterly Meeting was held at Devonshire House. The meeting for worship preceding it sat an hour and three-quarters. Messrs. Braithwaite, Swinborn, Hine, and Binns, Mrs. Braithwaite, Mrs. Fowler, and Mrs. Ashworth took part in it. The Quarterly Meeting adopted new rules for the large public schools which belong to it, known as Croydon Schools, and which are to be removed to a building in course of erection at Saffron Walden.

— Mr. John Hogarth Davies has been recorded as a minister by York Monthly Meeting.

— News has been received of the safe arrival in India of Mr. Samuel Baker and Mr. and Mrs. Williams, who are gone out as missionaries.

— A meeting of Old Ackworth Scholars was held at the close of the London Quarterly Meeting.

— Mr. Isaac Sharp and Mr. Langley Kitching were last heard of at Leribe, the most northerly station in South Africa. They are making their way to Cape Town. The Friends at Madagascar are said to be very anxiously waiting the time of their arrival in that country.

Cana Cannibals Caves – Lessuto Prophet 2nd them turn round. The last mile or so a native conducted us over the grass where there was no road visible

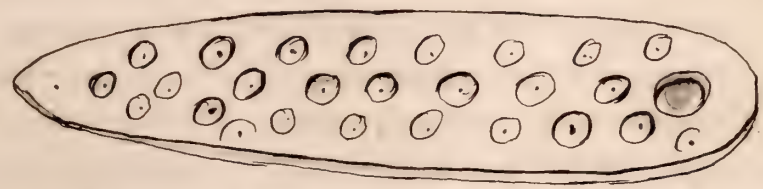
Osias (Hosea) the schoolmaster & his wife to whom I had a letter soon put us in occupation of the house brot. water & lit a fire & within a stones throw I gathered a dish of mushrooms which furnished us an excellent supper. We were thankful to have got through the dangerous river before the rain fell & glad to have a solid roof over our heads during the rest of the rainy evening

21·XI Up at five breakfast over & at 7.30 I went with Osias & Joel to see the Cannibals Caves about half an hours walk up the mountain near the mission station. H.S. did not feel quite strong enough to make the attempt. In a narrow gorge in the mountains with steep precipitous sides meeting at a point like a triangle, the rocks over-arch forming a large cavernous recess into which forty years ago the Bassuto Cannibals drove their human victims for slaughter. I picked up some pieces of skull & jaw-bones with the teeth in perfect preservation. Osias picked up a divining instrument of a "Lessuto prophet" which he gave to me saying

If you lose your horse, he look at this. Then he tell you lies, & say – your horse is th-e-re – pointing with his hand far away



It is made of bone shaped as above & pierced with a hole for wearing round the neck

Advanced Post — Horses drowned

21·XI — We left Cana at 8·10 travelling during the morning 3¾ hours Our course the first hour was north of west, then for half an hour W.S.W. when we crossed the river Tibite & turning N– NW and WNW round a mountain came in sight of Advanced Post a Magisterial residency of a son of Major Bell & at the bottom of the hill crossing the river Tsyetseyeneng outspanned on its banks for our noons refreshment. Starting again at 2·10 up the hill till close by the magistrates house & a policeman whom we had seen at Masera came & told us the road, followed by the magistrates clerk, who very civilly sent a foot & a mounted guide to shew us the way a few miles. We turned spirally up a well formed road up a steep mountain side close by travelling almost due North for 2¼ hours till we came to a store where the Caledon river ran broad & rapid below when we turned due West for ½ hour & then S.W. for 1 hour Total afternoons trek 3¼ hours outspanning after crossing a broad spruit & passing close on our right the village Thapani where was good drinking water, at 5·30 P.M. supposed to be distant from Berea ½ an hour horse-back

At our river crossing the magistrates clerk informed us they had this morning found two dead horses with harness & pole attached drowned washed down from above by the sudden thunder storm of yesterday afternoon: which descended just as we had safely crossed a larger river with much worse banks to descend & ascend. I had been anxious to get on & accomplish this seeing the rain threatening & remarked how providential it was for us No clue to the owner or owners of the horses & vehicle as yet or knowledge of what has become of them

22·XI In 2¾ hours this morning travelling S.W. we reached Berea VI & were welcomed by Joseph Maitin this son-in-law & nevis 9¼ hours ride from Cana to Berea Berea is well planted with fruit trees in the mission garden also blue gums & acacias. A pear tree 25 years old is full of young fruit & a blue gum 19 years old is over 2 feet in diameter grafted & planted along with others by the aged missionary who built his Church himself even to cutting all the wild olive wood & sawing it himself for in the early days he could get no help from the natives 23·XI This day by the week – but –.

24·XI To day by the month, is just a year since our I setting foot on African soil

The service was conducted in the Sesuto language by Joseph Maitin (pronounced Maiter) who interpreted for Isaac Sharp during the sermon portion of time after which he also interpreted for me a few words which I felt it right to say concerning the young man who came to our Saviour & said Good master what good thing must I do that I may have life eternal &c

Masern Meeting with its Inhabitants

25 XI. 2¼ hours trek (10 miles) with an outspan between brought us from
" Berea once more into Masern to the house of R. Rower who had kindly left his door open for us again & given notice for a meeting this evening for a Meeting with English speaking inhabitants; writing & sending out the notices of invitation which were responded to we were told by all the inhabitants without an exception & with notice meeting us at 8 o'clock I read the 1st of 1st Cor & explained our custom of silent worship & then W. Harris spoke at some length telling them of his love for S. A & of the people of Masern resting on his mind since we were last amongst them & the meeting was impracticable. A lady afterwards thanked him for saying we do not often get such an exhortation. I spoke to them what I had been feeling during the day as we travelled might be my duty to do on the great responsibilities which rested upon them planted as they were amongst a Native population most of whom are heathen though some profess the Christian name. Now I take it for granted that all in this room profess the name of Christ & it is on this point I wish to give a brotherly word of exhortation That your whole life & conversation & behaviour may be such as becometh the Gospel - that ye may do nothing to hurt the cause of that holy name by which we are called. You know how the eyes of the natives are upon you & how they watch to see whether your profession & practice agree. You know how that in ordinary conversation a word a look or a gesture will turn the current of events; & my desire that whilst following your lawful calling with the natives these may be on the right side. You have an influence for good amongst the heathen portion of the natives which does not fall

Mr. Richard Crowe, Maseru, Basutoland.

to the lot of the ordinary Missionary – (Some of you may say it is the part of the missionary to attend to these things) The missionary in his ministrations cannot reach the dark hearted heathen who holds aloof from the services will not come near: but he will for the purposes of gain come to the store – to the merchant the farmer & to the man of business And it is known only to yourselves how many are your opportunities of letting your influence be seen to be on the Lord's side in quarters where the missionary can never reach. It will be a help not only to the cause of Christianity but good for your own souls if you will always let your influence thus be seen to be on the side of your Saviour. When we got home R^d Thower remarked "I was very glad of what Mr Kitching said, for it is needed, there is a leader here, the son of a Wesleyan missionary, who thinks the missionaries are doing no good. Perhaps if he had to do this part on the side of the missionaries more good might be done by them. Certain it is we have seen some good christians among them

Procrastination the thief of time & bar to progress is R Thower says very prevalent in all the parts of the Colony I will give you Three Colonial Rules from which you must please consider Maseru an exception!

1 – Never do anything that can be left undone!
2 – Never by any means do anything yourself that you can get anybody else to do.
3 – By no means do anything today that you can do tomorrow

26·XI We left Masenu at 1 P.M. today & after travelling just III one hour came to the encampment of two wagons drawing up close beside them & outspanning ourselves for half an hour. One contained Joseph Ratlou his wife & family & married daughter Mrs Louvisin. The other belonged to Frederick Rohrer with his wife three little ones & the Swiss= French visitor Theodore Bernet. We were all pleased to see each other in this unexpected way. The servants on biveback were driving the cows to calf & suckle the children with milk. There were no other yoke servants to each wagon. When we had got within half an hour of Thaba Bosiio we observed two other wagons on our right coming from Morija, one of which contained the Casalis & the other the Dyke family. There were five ox-carts in the rear containing the Natives & all these with our selves journeying on to be present at Thaba Bosiio on the marriage tomorrow of one of the three missionaries with a young lady who came out only a few months ago to my brother & the sisters.
We arrived at Thaba Bosiio at 5·15 the first of the cavalcade joining — the distance from Masenu is 3 3/4 hours & this outspan is considered abt. 14 miles.
Our host A. Mackenzie Esqre we had met before at Morija He has been here a long time & has got all the mission buildings including one for 53 boarders on a neat & substantial order enclosing a square piece of ground covered now with nice short green grass. Other buildings are outside the square on lower ground & forming, an imposing background is Moseshe's mountain from which the Boers could not dislodge but only besiege & cannonade from Rosenhurst,

in surrounding mountains to hide, impose. Here as is urge where resides the Chief commander was killed. Mistake implying a making on a saint.
The natives here as well as at Berea have been taught to plant trees. A son of Moseth lives half a mile away thus this place surrounded with tall gum trees looking so attractive that I was telling our driver that must be the mission station: but no M. Coupe's talents and taste lie in neat arrangements & good buildings.
The welcome signs of a thunder storm were gathering fast.

27 XI IV The rain which began to descend last evening continued all night. This morning no one grumbling at the it was a wedding morning, but the remarks were so welcome as the rain in this dry climate. "O this is fine weather!

Hermann Casterlen and Hannah Buser were united in marriage according to the rites of the French Protestants our friend F. A. Coupe conducting the ceremony mostly in the Sesuto language for the benefit of the nearly 500 natives present many of whom were heathen. My lady partner was Miss Matan. There was an elegant and substantial breakfast to which about 30 of us sat down & a few lively & serious toasts were made mostly in French & Dr Casalis in English alluded to the joy our presence amongst them afforded & answered by F. Coupe & another alluding to the joy of the married love this our short experience of it, concluding with a Moravian anecdote of the sort. I followed with a few words. Food was distributed to the natives in the Hall of eight or ten great baskets of kaffir meal. The chiefs taking their first juice of a fruit in their hands. And sure I there might be seen a man handing a piece of meat to his mother

Apropos of weddings the christian young men can get their wives for nothing, of the trouble of wooing & winning is nothing! whilst the heathen men have to pay five or six head of cattle for each wife they possess: which has been a temptation to some of them to forsake christianity for some few months, long enough to make love to a christian girl to be accepted by her & get married & afterwards showing he was a renegade by taking another wife, or as they call it marrying another wife with cattle. Consternation a few months ago was thrown into the camp by the punishment of a case of this description with 18 months imprisonment for bigamy. A native being married according to the christian ceremony here binds himself to one wife & no other; a breach of it infringed renders him an object of the law. & this is the first case that has been successfully prosecuted.

28 XI All was interesting this morning to see our host dividing out his girl boarders into groups, some to weed the garden some to gather firewood & so on to the strangest handiwork in the kraal or cattle-pen imaginable the recent rains & the feet of the oxen had worked the manure into a muddy state. & this the 20 young women dressed in clean cotton gowns, standing & stooping were pitching into a heap with nothing but their two hands, & forming it into flat cakes throwing it over the head fence or wall outside, where it would remain a week to get dry. The rails or cakes are laid up with the hands were passed from the middle of the semicircular row of workers to each of the ends of it, so that one the two girls at the ends as they received the mats from the hands of the one next her dry plastered it over the wall. The principle that many hands make light work is carried out in the Basutos in their house-building & other work. Thus they will get a company together called a Letsema & have all the bricks made in one day. In another day the Letsema will have built the walls of the house; & if any remains to be roofed in the same way. Before the introduction of the plough the Letsema in the shape of a hoe-of-hands hoe cultivated the whole under the supervision of a head man. We require a number of sacks of rubbish for our mules & they have to be packed from a mile or two & a Letsema of eight strong girls from the school is placed in requisition to carry it in their native baskets on their heads. I wanted to have one one day & the lazy Malays send & carry it on their backs, but on the pipe said - the girls will do it with ease, - Many hands make light work.

He spent the forenoon in visiting the mountain of Moshesh the house in which he did & built & stone his Basuto fashioned council chamber in which he would sit all night & until near sun-rise in the morning with his councillors & then go to rest with its small red incircled window. Close by is the house of his first wife where his sons between Moteseyoe were fought.

You cannot enter without going on hands & knees the corner of an enclosure close by is a heap of cannon balls 4 times gathered together after the Basuto Boers had besieged the mountain & shelled it from the opposite mountains a mile & half or more distant. This was 20 years ago when they also fired at & injured the roof of the mission house while the family were in it

Moshesh was not buried in a kraal but on a sand hill in the top of his strong hold. A heap of stones roughly built together marks the spot of the man who's last resting place on earth with no larger & taller than the rest all on this of the road on which is inscribed simply the name Moshesh

The flat top of the mountain is still littered with the bones of the cattle that died during the siege As we were returning we stopped by the little spring of clear water issuing almost from the mountain top all that the Basutos had to quench their thirst At this the Boers pointed their cannon during the day & kept up a constant fire during the night also. But it is enjoined that a woman who was fetching water when we were there had her mother killed on the spot & she was the only one killed whilst fetching water. At the mission church which is at the foot of the mountain of Moshesh Dr Casalis had to dodge for his life; the windows were riddled & so often the could be seen as the Boers on stopping about the church who fired at him immediately he was visible. However he escaped the ruse of setting up his cloak that upon a pole & placing them in front of a window & of this dummy the bullets were freely shot whilst he was quickly barricadoing the rest

Besides the day school Pastor Coupe carries on an important work with 33 girls as boarders in an upper days school many of them almost young women & will very soon be the wives & heads of homes of their own. The writing of many from dictation is extremely good & this without notice when we visited them they were all seen & made under the coherent tendence of Mrs Cochet their own cotton gowns & pinnafores. We afterwards saw them all taking their evening meal of kaffir corn bread & broth. About an hour after which they were assembled for religious instruction & J. Swarb was invited to address them & tell them something of this nations experiences. Hymns were sung & prayer offered. Much good must be the result from the training of these girls in their after influence upon the future generation

That the natives are capable of much affection frequent proof has been given, of which the account of Moshesh's son Mateleka is an instance. This Mateleka loved a girl whom he desired to marry but was not allowed, witchcraft being threatened if he did. He said life was no longer dear to him if he might not have her & threw himself over the ledge of the mountain top; first planting his foot firmly down & underlining its outline on the spot from which he leapt. This was pointed out to us

29.XI Left Thaba Bosio at 9.20 A.M. with a native guide till we saw Korokoro in the distance & in 2 h. 40 min drew up at the store & residence of Samuel & C. Brummage — the parents of Emily Richards of Peka. A storm came on & we were glad of the shelter for nearly 3 hours, partaking of a cup of tea & light lunch. They gave me a pair of the now very scarce hartebeast horns (Antelope Kharma) The buck was shot nine months ago on a ~~Farm~~ cattle Post in the Malutis range 14 miles distant: peculiar to the mountains this is the only place I have heard of where they are now met with more than one or two in number at a time. & Thaba Putsua (grey Mtn)

A Thunder Storm at Morijah

Rain continued during the afternoon & we only made a 2½ hours trek outspanning for the night at the same spot that we spent our noon at on the 19th of last month when on our way to Morija for the first time, from whence we reached in 2½ hours just as a storm came on, below Peters store,

A Trek of 1¼ hours this morning brot us to Morijah to the house of R. M. Dyke this son Henry Dyke & his wife who tho having their own house close by prefer living together. 6¾ hours trek from Thaba Bosiu. A party of circumcision girls were early astir this morning

I

Our host asked me if I would lead them in our devotions this morning, which I thought right to do reading the 103rd Ps. & engaging in prayer followed by I. Sharp, who afterwards in his prayer said he had "a sensible Lord & Master"

The Thunder Storm.

This is a day long to be remembered. We have had frequent thunder storms lately. This afternoon whilst sat in the Mission Church, the second storm of the day came on with great fury. Isaac Sharp stood beneath the pulpit preaching and Doctor Casalis beside him interpreting. Very curiously it occured to me that Isaac Sharp's bald head offerred an attraction to the lightening (I never thought of any one else) and I thought how sad it would be if he were struck down & killed in this manner and so far away from home; - I breathed a short prayer that it might not be so: Isaac Sharp was then saying "Suffer the little children to come unto Me &c" when the noise of the storm became so deafening that nothing but the thunder and rain could be heard. The preacher and interpreter sat down together for Mr Casalis found that neither of them were heard. Just at that instant a terrific crash burst over the building and I was struck to the ground. I felt as though a kind of elastic heavy weight had fallen upon my head. The lightning also passed through my loins down my legs & out at my feet throwing them up my head forward. I was stunned & could not rise for a minute or two & after regaining a sitting position was a little while before I could stand or use my arms or hands. Mrs Casalis the doctor wife sat close on my right and her little child of one year and eight months old had just gone to sleep in the arms of its mother who laid it on the bench by her side on some wrappers. Close on my left in the same pew, sat H M Dyke then his wife next him. At the left of Mrs Dyke was the vestry wall & the window of which the electric fluid struck splintering it & drawing out the nails & scattering portions of wood at the door of entrie. It also entered at the corner of our pew cracking the wall by Mrs Dyke whom the fire was seen to flash over her in front back severely scorching her & slightly paralysed H M Dyke on his shoulders but only momentarily stunned him. Travelling along the wall it came to me next then to Mrs Casalis in all her limbs and she sat paralysed unable to rise. From her it went to the sleeping child babe by her side which gave one gasp and its spirit soared away to heaven. The lightening ran from its head to its toe which it quite blackened. Miss Keck sat at its feet received the shock by her side & one shoulder which it scorched. From our group the lightening must have passed through the floor of the building, across to the opposite side; for Sharp afterwards fell a slight dose & five native women also in the middle of the church were rendered speechless for some four or five hours afterwards & four native men near them felt it slightly. And on the extreme opposite corner, Miss Malan felt it in her side & Mrs Wells a merchant's wife was momentarily paralyzed. There was a smell of fire & smoke & dust was scattered about & for a little while it was not known whether the building was on fire or not.

Under the circumstances the congregation was an example of calmness & propriety & whilst the missionaries were in the vestry assisting those who had been hurt several Babus offered impromptu prayers evidently from the heart J. D. Sharp also among the number, that the warning voice might strike home to the hearts of all.

Express horseback messengers were quickly sent to the nearer mission stations travelling in the night well knowing that the brotherly claims of sympathy would be promptly responded to

Morija – The Funeral

Yesterday a beautiful child in health & vigour – To-day, it lies beneath the sod. The second child the cold hand of death has taken from these christian parents within the year It was remarked by Dr Casalis – Your Friends Backhouse & Walker were here 40 years ago when my parents lost a little one & were present at its funeral.

Very nearly the same company which assembled less than a week ago for the Marriage were met together at the grave side. Before the procession left the house, as all stood around the little white covered coffin at the door prayer was offered in Sessuto by Dr Casalis & then moved along after it following its Relatives & the school of young men in their blue jackets & cord trousers brought up the rear two by two, with a large number of sympathysing natives from the villages near. A hymn was sung by the way & an extempore Sermon preached by A Mabille & prayer also, followed in the same by J. Sharp and then Dr. Casalis himself spoke in Sepulo

Thunder and lightning storms of a violent character have been experienced in several of the inland districts lately, and in some instances loss of life has resulted from sudden electrical discharges. At Morija, in Basutoland, a church was struck during Divine Service. A daughter of the minister, Alice Casalis, was killed by the flash. Mrs. Dyke, the wife of a missionary, and Mr. Langley Kitching were severely injured and some others were scorched. Mr. Kitching is a member of the Society of Friends and with Mr. Sharp, who was preaching, is on a visit to South Africa to inspect the missionary institutions of the country.

Moriya Training Inst

3. XII III J.S. gave a lecture to the students this morning on his travels in Northern lands. In the evening had a religious meeting with them. We dined with Dr Casalis

4. XII IV Writing for the Mail leaving early in the morning Dined with A. Mabille. - Preached the Church

5. XII V A number of us set off on horse-back (J.S. referred walking) 3/4 of an hours journey to see Letsea son of the late Moshesh & now the paramount chief of the Basutos His father when alive sent him to live at Morija near the missionaries that he might become a christian. J.S. addressed him & exhorted him to turn to Christ & the power of His Spirit &c And he replied the missionaries had said the same words to him many times, but that he had not yet seen his way to accept christianity

6. XII VI Upwards of 50 elders & catechists assembled this morning suitably addressed by J.S. & briefly responded to by two or three A. Mabille interpreting

We had intended leaving this afternoon but a violent storm of thunder lightening & hail stones of enormous size prevented us flooding the land filling the spruits & water courses & destroying the crops The hail stones seemed very few & far less than hazel nuts with many the size of large walnuts & some the size of hens eggs In some places they lay two feet deep where they had been drifted or washed by the accompanying rain The storm lasted 1½ hour & others succeeded Peaches and apricots were knocked off the trees & branches & leaves strewed about in profusion & a pig was killed near the pathway

7. XII VII Thunder & hail in the night & thunder storm again this afternoon giving me a feverish head ache all the time it lasted from the effects of the stroke a week ago tomorrow

Sketched the Training Institute & copied it for Mrs Dyke Senr who has been up on the sofa yesterday & today

1878 Moriah

7. XII Moriah is known amongst the Heathen natives more especially by the name of the mountain, Mahuarane, at the foot of which it is situated & the signification of which is - The covering of the doves - From the number of doves & pigeons building in its rocky ledges. There is a good deal of iron-stone in places which attracts the thunder storms; but at the same time tends to scatter the lightening & lessen its effects

8. XII D.V. kept his bed today feeling a sore throat & oppression on his chest Dr Casalis ordered him a sinapisam & embrocation composed of ~~Chloroform~~ camphor olive oil & hartshorn & Brain Killer which is largely composed of Aconite - & to take for his throat a mixture of Balsam of Tolou. After reading & M Dyke his son R & D prayed for his speedy restoration & that he might have a time of sweet communion with their Saviour

9. XII F.S. got up after breakfast much better. Mrs Dyke Senr was with us to dinner for the first time since the thunder storm

F. want to remember to send R & Dyke a few stones of the blood red or Indian beach grown in the Southern States

Took another sketch of the Training School & Dykes house

10. XII I called the men up soon after half past three & this morning to feed the mules & then let them have an hour or two's grass eating before being harnessed for the journey. The usual Missionaries prayer meeting was held yesterday evening in the house all the families attending. After a chapter in the bible was read the welfare of the Mission both at home and abroad was prayed for whether here at Morija or the whole of Basutoland or at Senegal, Tahite, or New Guinea: as well as other missionary efforts and special mention of the Coillards in which F.S. joined

111

We breakfasted soon after seven J.S. conducted the morning worship Mrs Casalis & Mrs Mabille being present also Misses Keck & Misses Malan The mules were inspanned & the coach drawn up at the door ready for starting, - when A Mabille appeared at the head of a long string of students who drew up in a group under the verandah & commenced singing a beautiful hymn in which they were joined by the missionaries & the ladies & native servant girls "We shall meet on that beautiful shore in the sweet bye & bye" It was exquisitely & touchingly sung under a touching sense of leave taking for as Mrs Dyke said we have felt bound to you by the troubles we have passed through & have been glad to have you with us at such a time giving my hand a prolonged squeeze. Mrs Casalis in shaking hands said somewhat the same, also "Your visit has been a great comfort to us. The two remaining sweet little Casalis children Fanny & Maurice came to be lifted up & kissed. The little Mabilles were almost too shy. With many a heart felt "God be with you" we left Morija as we drove for ever at 7.45 - & accompanied two or three miles on the way by a horse-back cavalcade composed of R.H. Dyke & his wife (who was an Alston or Austen of Edinburgh, but born in Australia) Dr Eugene Casalis, his sister-in-law Keck & Miss Malan. When we got to Crowdie's store we met a waggon containing Schrearer & his wife with whom they turned back to Moriah after we had all exchanged greetings & farewells. I found Mrs Schrearer is sister to our friend Lundy who came out in the Dunrobin Castle with us & said her brother had only left them two weeks ago Schrearer is looking out for another location for Missionary efforts He is a German, & I recommended him Witzie Hoek having been advised by R.H.D. so to do.

Hermon Mafeteng

In 1 hour we crossed the river by the usual ford (Tsuaing R.) In 1 hour more crossed the narrow stretched out S/ver of the Bolekа mountain. In a little over 2 hours more we arrived in Dipthering where is a large store of Fraser's of Maseru / Adolph Casalis brother of the S- is in charge to whom I had two packages in charge. We shook hands with his wife at the house then passed on twenty minutes or so & outspanned close outside the older spot of Mafeteng: after refreshment walking on to see an old lady of ~5 Mrs Rolland who when she heard we had been at Mohlo said my husband was stationed there many years ago & I nursed my eldest child in my arms watching him build with the church with his own hands So I sharp she said your coming in to the room reminded me of dear old James Backhouse I remember him and G. W. Walker quite well. She did not know they were both gone from the land of the living. Roland the Superintendent of Govt Instruction at Maseru is one of her sons. A daughter Mrs Hope is living with her at present whose husband is obliged to be by himself in some wild troubled parts of Caffraria We took leave & proceeded on our journey at 3 o'clock passing by the south of the Kalabani mountain & arrived at the Hermon mission station at 5.45 Total trek 7½ hours where we were welcomed by the newly married couple Herman Dieterlen & his wife Hannah (late Busch) to whom I was the bearer of two or three parcels containing wedding presents.

Hermon is situated close at the foot of the Jammer Berg mountain & is usually entered through a short narrow part or neck It was at one time the station of Rolland Senior whose tomb is close by And our late aged friend H M Dyke lived here in the first tiny little cottage that was built. There is now a good church & school & dwelling house.

11·XII (Damage was done here by the same hail storm 64 panes IV of glass having been broken & crops destroyed & small animals killed I picked up birds & mice killed by it at Morija & there our host lost a cock by it & even sheep & goats were killed. A usual weekly prayer meeting came in course this afternoon which was somewhat altered to afford J Sharp an opportunity with the people appreciated by all We afterwards walked through the Port to Tsekhopes where Mr T's relative Chalmers is Independent minister at Graham's Town & wished us to mention having seen her. Mr T. goes about photographing but is at present at Aliwal North to engage in a cricket match Their store is only 10 minutes walk from the O.F.State boundary which goes over the top of Jammer Berg

In evening I read for the family Ps XLVI

12·XII We reached this place by the right of the spur of the hill V which forms with Jammer Berg the port or Neck by which Hermon is usually approached & by which we left it 3 9.20 A.M. passing close by Mafeteng & stopping a short while at Dipharing at Fraser's store & the house of Adolphe Casalis who gave me a pair of sticks used by the Basutos in procuring fire, a round jar, steel pocket handkerchief. We again passed near Mafeteng & continued half an hour beyond it for two & a qr. hours reaching Siloe about 6 P.M. after a total trek of no more than 6 hours. Mrs Maeder was weeding in her garden but she & her husband quickly came to welcome us

13·XII The Chief Molet-asani had notice of a meeting but being VI an old man & tired with a recent journey his son came in his stead with a good number of their people. It was the last day of the School which we looked into just before the meeting I said a few words to the children & young & old & presently I entered & said a little more In the afternoon we visited the chief an hours walk to his village at the foot of a mountain who thanked

Siloe – The Chief Molitsane

I. Sharp for the words he had spoken to his people & said – If all the world would receive the Gospel there would be less misery & more happiness in the world.
F. Maeder who calls himself an assistant missionary has been out 41 years from Germany & is the father of the D.R.Ch. minister of Ladybrand & Hendrie the farmer (Harrismith) who so kindly gave us three days of his time in going with us to Witzies Hoek at a time when his wife was ill & his stock needed attention F. M. has passed thro. many dangers & when he lived at Monjo was threatened & fired upon by the Boers.
Our host had seven sheep & nine goats killed by the hail stones in the storm of the other day

Molitsane. –

Molitsane was 70 years old before he became a Christian convert he had at that time several wives; but as a proof of his sincerity he discarded them all but one. His first wife had died & so he made choice from the lot of the youngest & nicest looking woman we were introduced. He is now 80 having been a real christian 10 years. Years ago when guns were not yet known amongst them, they were at war with the neighbouring Korannas some of whom possessed both guns & horses & so knew how to use them, especially against the Basutos who at that time had neither & thus became easy victors on the occasion of a sudden descent. But Molitsane & his Basutos not to be out done; with assegais & skerri returned the assault in the night & killed all that band of Korranas. And now said Molitsane we did not know what to do with the guns – we thought they went off by blowing throw them, but we could not tell how: so we thought as we could do nothing with them, we would make use of the iron & convert them into picks & hoes. So, we made a great fire, & sat around it, & piled the guns into it. some of them were loaded it seems, for as they got warm, they began to go off. Imagine our consternation - I thought the spirits of the departed Koranas were in them & ran away in fright, it would have amused you to see how we all fled from the place as quick as our legs could carry us

14·XII VII Left Siloe at 2·30 P.M., & over a wretched road & having to get out of the coach two or three times & walk for fear of an upset we reached Thabana Morena in 2¾ hours also of the Paris Ev. Mission where Paul Germond has been in charge somewhere about 16 years. He is a native of Switzerland The Station is named from a native name for a very small hill or little mountain - Thabana, & Moréna, king or chief (the same name being used for God) thus King's mountain, from a Chief who a very many years ago lived close by with his people no one of importance living there now Rain is greatly wanted here still. It is generally a dry spot & consequently short harvests & we are unable to buy corn or forage for the mules; but our host kindly cut a little stunted wheat & some lucern for them

15·XII The little church was densely packed with abt 250 people this morning most of them sitting close on the ground D.V. occupied the sermon portion of time & was interpreted for by Paul Germond At the close the people flocked around us shaking hands & made the native catechist their mouth piece to convey their acknowledgements of the visit - The substance of it was The Gospel must be a great power to cause two men to leave their native land, families & friends & come so far to see the work of the Lord & we desire to express our appreciation of the visit & to thank you for the words spoken this morning.

16 XII After the mornings reading with address & prayer from Sharp Paul Germond said – My dear Sir words cannot express the gratitude I feel for your visit, you & Mrs. Kitching (laying a hand on the knee of each) Your visit has done more than many sermons could have done.

We left Thabana Morena our host accompanying us some miles on our way on horseback where we might have mistaken the road, reckoning 4 ¾ hours to Cornet Spruit where we outspanned for noon first buying a bag of mealies for 4/– In the afternoon we reckoned 3 ¼ hours total for the day 8 hours Beyond Mohalis Hoek ½ hour. Outspanning for the night at 6.40 P.M. about Sun-set. Thermometer at 10 P.M. in tent 70° F.

17 XII Rose at 5.30 A.M. breakfasted & left outspan at 8 A.M. travelled over a bad road for 1 ¼ hour round the base of Thaba li Mohali a high peaked mountain at the Southern base of which Bethesda is situated, while at its northern is Mohalis Hoek where Mr Barkly magistrate resides & keeps the Post Office The sun-set tints of purple & grey on the mountains is grand

18 XII At meeting this morning at which about 150 attended Thunder storm at its close. Evening a horse back ride to the base of the Maluti's & after supper a look into the night school for those engaged during the day in herding & shepherding which numbers about 60 attenders some of whom come an hour on horseback, two married sons of the local chief are amongst the number being desirous of learning to read, also the half cast children of a trader near by, that is half a mile distant. This is the only school

1878 Bethesda Orange R. Masitisi

18·XII IV of its kind we have seen. There is another at an out-station belonging this place & one conducted by A. Mabille at Morija which are the only other attempts which have been carried through

Here we got our first really ripe apricots of the season & the best bread in Basuto-Land

19·XII V Left Bethesda at 8 A.M. treked 4½ hours & outspanned at 12:30 till 3 Treked again 1½ hour & came to the banks of the Orange River. It was very wide but shallow and I walked through it knee deep. There is a small punt which will take light wagons across in case of need We crossed two good sized streams near together the last being Tšiè river the farm Palmer's Fontein the widest & commenced winding up the mountain side where we outspanned finding it impossible to get to our destination in day light at 7. P.M. Total day's trek 8 hours Our coach has been much shaken over the bad roads & with its heavy luggage seems almost falling to pieces

20·XII VI Further travelling & shaking for 2 hours over these bad roads of the Malutis mountains brought us to the romantic Masitisi mission Station the last of the Paris Society where Fred. Ellenberger taking advantage, in time of the war with the Boers, of the natural facilities of overhanging rocks & caves, has formed his house, with very little masonry built up in front, close by is a cave formerly inhabited by the very diminutive Bush-men in which the paintings of the eland & hippopotamus are still visible.

We were glad to hear there was a good native blacksmith living a mile or two off & at once got him engaged on our coach which had become quite unsafe to ride in from its heavy load & bad roads

Recall the Orange River & Caledon & Basuto-land to mind from the frequent deaths in it

22. XII. A new church is now in course of erection capable I of holding about 600 people In this the service was held twice today - in the morning F.D. being the preacher & in the afternoon F. Maeder brother-in-law to F. Ellenberger. The magistrate from Leribe attended with his family. His name is Austin ~~He married a native~~ & he is a half caste, his children mostly grown up show the dark colour excepting one daughter who might be taken for entirely white

Inkatini (or Enoch) the Shepherd Boy

Our host gave us two or three instances of the fruits of his labours of which the history of Inkatini is not the least interesting

Inkatini is the son of a chief of a small village about a mile or two from the Masitisi mission station of the Paris Evangelical Society in Basuto Land, being its most southern station. At this time, being about 13 years old, like most boys of his age, he was out in the veld herding cattle with two others a year or two younger than himself, when they saw an old man passing near them. Inkatini, even at this age, exercising the authority of the son of a chief, ordered his two young companions to go & curse the old man. They declined. Whereupon he threatened them and raised his knob kerri to strike them till they were fain to go. All at once Inkatini was filled with remorse Something seemed to seize hold of him & make him quite wild. He thought within himself what have I done — sent two children to curse an innocent old man: and he threw away his knob kerri took to his heels running over the rocks &

The Cave houses of Alcoutim, J. Ellenberger mountains as though he were mad & as if he would to dash himself to pieces: and it was with great difficulty this father & a number of men who went out after him could catch him & bring him home.

But they could not keep him: he ran away again, & this time until he came to the mountain hut of a former Witch Doctor who had lately become a Christian. He arrived there in the middle of the night, & said in great haste & earnestness, you must take me to the Missionary. The man tried to pacify the boy & prayed with him. Inkaline kept urging him to take him to the missionary. The man after three times praying with him promised to go with him to Fred^k Ellenberger the missionary as soon as it was day light. So before the sun was risen they were both at the missionary's door calling him out of bed and desiring to speak with him. And there the boy told all he had done and his wild sorrow for it. The parents who were dark heathens had followed in the track of their boy, & desired the missionary to give him some medicine
No, said Mr Ellenberger, this is not a case for medicine, it is only a subject for prayer: God has troubled him, & it is only God who can set him right: we must pray with him. The boy refused to go back to his heathen home partly because he feared the heathen customs being practised upon him. (knowing that the circumcisional season for youths of both sexes was at hand) His great desire was to be with the missionary; but his wildness not having entirely left him the missionary was afraid to have him in his family lest his children might receive some harm; so, after a little consideration he sent for a widow woman a good christian, living near, and said to her, the Lord has some work for you to do, will you do it? What is it, said she. It is to take care of this poor boy & to pray with him & bring him to see me as often as you like & we will pray with him. The woman agreed & took him home, doing her best with him. On one occasion taking to running again he had a fall which very much shook him & caused him to vomit some fibrous looking material, after which he became self possessed immediately & calm & peaceful, saying he felt like a new creature. In fact, it seemed like a sudden conversion for from this moment the boy grew up in a good course of life, never afterwards uttering a single wrong word, or giving the missionary cause for uneasiness.

On one occasion Mr Ellenberger had to leave the station for a lengthened period, but could not do so until his flock of about sixty sheep had a good care taker & he asked Inkatini if he would take charge of them until he could get a good shepherd. He at once agreed & such was his care of the sheep, that whilst other flocks lessened in number by the severity of the winter Hambling time, the flock under Inkatini's charge even grew fat, & neither sheep nor lamb was lost. How is this, said Mr Ellenberger on his return. O! replied Inkatini whilst the other shepherds were playing I attended to my duty, I was never afraid of walking 2 or 3 miles to find out where the good grass was & to drive the sheep to it. The missionary was desirous of doing something for him, & asked what it should be: when he met with the ready reply O! do let me go to the school at Morija & learn to be a teacher or a school master. Which was agreed to Mr Ellenberger agreeing to find him in clothes during his stay there.

During the Missionary's long absence Inkatini learned to exercise his influence as the son of a chief in a different manner to his former one; for he got the young shepherds together read the scriptures to them & prayed with them. The result being that Mr Ellenberger was met on his return by a number of new converts from heathenism, who had been brought to Jesus through the instrumentality of Inkatini, who at about this time on his baptism received the name of Enoch. He is now a man having charge of an outstation where he is catechist & schoolmaster. & what is more through his means his parents have been brought to renounce their heathenism & embrace christianity.

Emma Ellenberger the wife of our host is acquainted with four languages speaking French English German & Sesuto fluently. When on their recent long absence from ~~Masitisi~~, being at home in France; from her ill health the doctors said she must not return to Africa, if she did she would die; her reply was, I would rather die in the service of the Lord than hinder my husband in his work by keeping him away. They have four children with them and about the same number educating in France.

56 1878 Masitisi A convert against his will

25. XII Christmas (day) Spent in the Southern limits of IV Basuto Land, South Africa. Ripe fruits - apricots, figs & blackberries

The Basutos have been proverbial as a nation of liars Yet the time the Ellenbergers came to settle here one of their number at a prayer meeting said O' Lord we are such liars that if the tail of the fish were sticking out of our mouths we should say we had not eaten it! In a meeting of elders we attended at Morija one of them said he was formerly both a thief and a liar when first the missionaries came he stole three sheep from them but he had learned better now & become a christian.

26. XII This was the usual meeting day with the catechists V evangelists, at which we were present this morning.
One of them related how an old man who had fled from the Mission Station at Thaba Bosigo lest he should be converted or persuaded by missionaries or evangelists, some few years ago; now an old man unable to move about, was visited by some native deaconesses, who talked with him to some purpose: & he was also obliged to listen to their religious conversation with others in the house where he was residing; till, at length he renounced his heathenism & joined the christian faith - the convictions in his own soul being too powerful for him any longer to combat with.
Take notice this was through the instrumentality of womens preaching from which, as it was smilingly remarked, his bodily infirmity rendered him unable to fly from & he was this time compelled to listen

Masitisi — Hemp Smoking

The heathen Basutos, as well as the Baskmen (what few there are left of them) still smoke the wild hemp or Dacha which has a maddening effect on the brain although it is usually smoked through water. An old man on this station smoked to such a degree that he seemed to be getting quite mad & if people came near him he would pelt them with stones. He was inclined to christianity & in this way F. Ellenberger had some influence over him & on one occasion took hold of the pipe & said I shall not let you have this any more, it is doing you harm. At first the man actually cryed for his pipe, but could not get it back and to make another would be a formidable piece of work not accomplished in a short time; & by a little persuasion & manouvering he was at length induced to quite give up the habit & the pipe & the gift of a clean white blanket settled the owner ship satisfactorily. The man has now become what may literally be termed clothed & in his right mind, being an exemplary christian. And F. E. said he will be both pleased & amused when he is informed that this said pipe has been handed over to me to take home on such a long journey & be deposited in my museum

58 1878 Masitisi — Kind Expressions on Leaving

The new church is just finished roofing with reeds & the wild mountain bamboo; a voluntary piece of work by the natives, & we have watched their steady progress at it with much interest. J.S. gave 10/- for a sheep for them in honor of the occasion & they made a graceful acknowledgement of it through one of their number

We sat together after dinner before taking leave, for a period of devotion: when J. Sharp read a portion of Scripture & then spoke in brotherly love: ending with kneeling in prayer, in which he was followed by T. Ellenberger in French, which was mainly on our behalf & for our protection on the journey. Both he & his wife expressed themselves highly gratified with our visit & thankful to the Society which had sent us as delegates: saying —

"You will long be remembered in Masitisi, and as remarked by the native, your visit will do more good than many sermons for when they know that you have come so far not only to visit those of your own colour but them also, & not for any purposes of trade or personal advantage, they will see that there is a power & reality in Christianity which will make even the heathen to enquire into it & result in many conversions.

I said a few words also

Before leaving the following letter was placed in J. S.'s hands

Beloved Brethren in our Lord Jesus Christ

I cannot let your delegate, Mr Sharp, leave us, nor his companion Mr Ritching, without entrusting them

" with a few lines of thanks and cordial affection for you who have sent them a visit Missionaries and the Churches. This is a great, holy and costly work which you have undertaken for the glorious name of our Lord and with the good thought of encouraging the Ministers of the Word and the Churches by affectionate and sympathetic words.

Your delegates visit will not fail to leave salutary impressions in the hearts of many at Masitisi, for not only will the pressing exhortations of the dear and reverend Mr Sharp not efface themselves from the memory of those who have seen and heard him, but also the interest that he has shewn us on the occasion of the building of our House of Prayer will perpetuate the remembrance of the visit which he and his amiable companion have made us in your name.

May the Lord in His loving-kindness accompany them wherever they may still have to go by His Spirit and His Grace, so that His Holy Name be glorified by them and that they themselves may always feel that they are upheld and directed by Him who is our Divine Master, our God & our Saviour.

Beloved Brethren, may you through the instrumentality of your delegates and the report they will give you of the Missions they have visited, feel yourselves encouraged and greatly compensated for the good you have done us with so much brotherly love.

themselves to me in all that I have just written to you. Accept here also their thanks and the expression of their christian affection. Masitisi Church together with my dear wife, myself and family, recommend ourselves to your prayers and salute you in Christ Jesus our Redeemer.

Yours faithfully in the bonds

Mrs E desired me to give a message from her to my dear wife conveying her kind love and appreciation of the self abnegation in parting with me this visit & I am to be sure and send them my photograph when I get home. And thus we took leave of our kind friends and the most southern mission station of the Paris Evangelical Society in British Basuto Land situated in the angle formed by the Orange and Masitisi river the former about 3 or 4 miles from the former & 6 or 8 from the latter. The Sessuto name for the Orange river is Senku (or as it is also written Vinqu) which means black and dangerous from the frequent fatal accidents in its crossings or drifts which have sunken caves forming whirlpool pools beneath & dashing anyone to pieces who happens to become submerged, also quicksands

It was 2.15 when we left Masitisi and in 1¾ hour we crossed the Tele river and in ½ an hour more stopped at the store at Thaba Bosiu station kept by Austin son of the magistrate at Leribe & bought some medicines for the mules at 40/ the muid or bag & outspanned for the night 1 hour further on total 3¼ hours

BASUTOLAND.—The following telegram was published by the Cape Argus last Friday:—Aliwal North, 9·30 a.m.—Austen had to fly from his post on Sunday; had to leave his furniture and clothes. The place was sacked; every article destroyed or taken away. Hundreds of houses smashed, and contents of garden destroyed by the horses of the marauders.

30.XII 11 In addition to ourselves ten visitors married & single have unexpectedly come to stay the night & new year's day - & also very likely not the least, to eat fruit - apricots & figs being in profusion. One of the gentlemen, with whom I strolled amongst the splendid gum trees, said, are you a quaker? I will tell you afterwards why I ask you. I replied yes - we are both members of the Society of Friends commonly commonly called Quakers. Well, he said, we had just got to hear there were two Quakers come into the neighbourhood we have never seen Quakers here in this part of S. Africa before, but we have heard all sorts of strange reports concerning them - that they were unpleasant people, and, you could never have disagreable word with them. Now I never conversed with two pleasanter men in my life. - How came you to be called Quakers? This led to a little profitable conversation on spiritual matters which I think he appreciated, & desired a little stimulating. On seeing him at his own house a day or two afterwards he said "I shall endeavour to follow that which is right however difficult it may be" I mentioned that we had an unerring guide ever present help &c. I brought, inter alia a couple of letters to Alice for him, & the promises to send after me an article of native attire which I am not to think of paying him for. (2.I.1879)

A Grand Heathen Wedding Dance Bamboo Spirit

31 XII 1878 We took leave of our friends at Bensonvale at ten this morning taking 2½ hours till we outspanned for noon after crossing Bamboo Spruit. At a village of Tambookies close by natives from all quarters seemed to be congregating to celebrate a no less event than the marriage of the Chiefs son. Twenty head of cattle and a horse had brought the bride. The Tambookies are red Kaffirs men & women usually go entirely without clothing or the least apology for it; but on this occasion the best girdles of beads ornamented skins for the waist were to be seen on the women, whilst the men mostly wore a girdle of tiger-cat tails & a plume of feathers on their heads: both wore dried skin rattles round their ankles & ankles which helped their voices in the wild songs & speeches of defiance & taunt which are kept up for hours together during the barbaric heathen dance as they stamping first one foot and then the other on the ground standing in a double row - the women in front the men behind; both parties holding knob-kerries or long sticks in their hands which they raise above their heads moving them up & down. Now & then a man would step out from the line & go through the action he had performed in spearing an enemy & boasting of his prowess in the performance. This was the moment for the line of bridesmaids with the bride in the middle to sing his praises & taunt the bridegroom for his want of bravery. It is the bride's last chance of using her tongue against her lord; & the ceremony over she comes & gives herself up to him & works him to use her well & henceforth she intends to be a good obedient wife

Another hek of 3 hours total 5½ hours hek brought us to the Wesleyan M.S. of Witte Bergen where we had a kindly welcome from Mr & Mrs Giddy Family He is 72 years of age. Has been 44 years in the the mission field without having paid a visit home He is an entertaining man. (who has learned the right part of earing with is own hears & seeing with is own heyes!)

We had not been long seated in the house before a little gentleman came in Said which is Mr Kitching? I want to know if he is from Leeds for I wish I ought to know him. It was Oswald Bris, whom I knew when we were boys. He has been out in S. A. now 19 years He has one brother Wesleyan minister at Wakerley & another ditto. at Delke. He expressed great pleasure at seeing me altho we never had much more than a casual acquaintance, & had many questions to answer He sometimes writes on folk lore in the Cape Monthly newspapers, as for instance - The Diary of a Kaffir & the Diary of a Hottentot. I subsequently rode 4 miles to see him at his own home. His wife whose name was Amery was a governess at Miss Smith's in Woodhouse Lane Leeds tho. I believe born in S. A. (I was told she was a Dutch woman)

This was Watch Night - the first of its kind I had attended, The services began at ten o'clock in the chapel close by & continued a quarter of an hour into the new year. Rev Biter the Episcopalian minister from Hirval on a neighbouring visit joined in the services & I Sharp spoke after him About 150 natives were present

1. I IV At the Berge Wesleyan Mission Station is built on a high rocky eminence It is said by the stone a subject of Asthma in hopes of being benefitted by the dry position On nearing the place the eye is attracted by a pyramid looking stone on still higher ground the grave of one of the former children. In a hoek or corner beneath the house two wild olive trees survive the general raid upon them. Several stems of fossil wood project from the crags beneath I was informed no other fossils were seen but on walking away just picked up a piece of sandstone on which was a good impression of a sea weed similar to what I had found a year ago near Cape Town

We sat down quite a New Years dinner party and to fare fitted for the festive occasion after which we had intended leaving but Hool induced himself to with some friends to Zadoy prey a few miles off frustrated our designs & the expressed pleasure of our friends & so thus got to hear a little more of J. Sharps accounts of this northern journies. and I took a horseback ride of 4 miles to see Osmale Brijs who joined our party in the evening & hear another edition of the old countries. He presented me a present of a husk of wory of the hippopotamus found in the Orange River

The glare of the sun shot all over these sandy hills it was very trying to my eyes I saw one Antelope also.

2. I V We left Little Berg M.S. about nine A.M. calling on Ormond son in-law of Mr Giddie for 1/2 hour twere by appointment met on the road by Osmale Brijs with a horse & each so that we might take a short & quick visit to a little Bush-woms hut a mile or two off the road at the foot of some rocky mountains I measured her height under 4 feet 4 in girth of wrist barely 4½ inches length of arm 1 foot 10½ inches and length of foot 7½ inches. She took a pencilling of her feet & hand as she held them out for me to trace round. She is known to be upwards of 70 years old & has lost all her teeth. She is very poor & I gave her some money whereupon she informed him that he was now her son. Her feet look small & her hands would look smaller were not the joints enlarged in over work. She lives with a small half caste Portuguese husband, an ex-slave & is the last of her race in these parts. This occupied us a ¾ hour so that we only made a trek during the morning of 1½ hour & 3½ hours more we reached the Kraai River & got across its ford or Drift in 15 min. & ¼ hour beyond through the small poort outspanned for night at 6 P.M. by the winding banks of the Kraai River. I got a little writing done in my tent but the wind blew so strong as to drive me to bed at eleven

3. I Left our outspan on the Kraai river at 7.45 A.M. & in 1¼ hour entered Aliwal North a pretty looking little town with white houses & buildings partially hid by green trees. We stopped at the Post Office & I got two letters from my wife & some name cards We then called with a letter of introduction upon John Smith Methodist Minister who said he was very glad indeed to welcome us into his house having heard of us through the newspapers, & 8 or 9 months ago C.H. Radloff stayed a few nights with him after having us on his way to see his mother at Ladybrand.

The "Friends" at Aliwal North.—Messrs. I. Sharp and L. Kitching, the two "Friends" from England, who are paying a visit to the churches of South Africa, conducted Divine Services in Christ Church on Sunday last at the usual time.

4. I Aliwal North has plenty of water for irrigation from some VII hot sulphur springs conveyed a few miles from where it bubbles up out of the ground & people resort to bathe It has a good public library in a separate building. Visited master Brown a rough looking old man is quite a scientific character & number of some foreign societies. A bridge across the Orange river is now building & expected to be completed in about 12 months suspended on iron pillars. It is 900 ft. across 5. I Attended the chapel of our host in the morning Wesleyan Meth.
I this in the afternoon at both of which Sharp spoke In the evening the place was given up for a Friends Meeting according to advertisement in the papers when I opened it by reading the 3rd Chap. of the 1st Epistle of John explaining our mode of silent waiting upon God & asking the congregation therein to unite before the offering of exhortation & prayer. Broke the silence with a few words of exhortation to be prepared for the final summons after which Sharp spoke lengthily & powerfully afterwards kneeling in prayer. We had what was called a large congregation in which were some from all the other churches (Dutch Ref^d & Presbyterians & Episcopalians and Plymouth Brethren with some whom are not often seen at any place of worship
6. I Coach repairing by a man who remembers Jas B. & S. W. W.
" Evening Sharp gave a lecture in the library on Northern Lands at with about 40 attended & were evidently interested The magistrate Caldecott on whom I called with our host J. Smith asked me "Are you collecting curiosities? I replied yes when I can get them, when he at once left the room & returned with a young lioness's head & the horn of a rhinoceros saying as additional interest with they were shot by Samuel the missionary soon after he went to settle in Basuto Land The former in the cattle kraal

7. III I We had intended leaving Aluval North this morning; but the showers which commenced yesterday, in the night turned into steady determined rain very much wanted here way continued until noon without any intermission, The mules are only half of them finished shoeing, & Abdol has sprained his ankle in some bout or other.

8. IV I Again heavy rain in the night wind & threatening weather all day. Mules all shod for 12/- a mule or 3/- a shoe this is 3/- a mule ~~less~~ than at Kimberley Even here where the man buys his coal at the coast for £. 3. a ton he pays £20 for its transport.

Went to John Brown's the Post Master to see his collection of live lizards tortoises &c including five of those large lizards whose generic name is Reginia being three or four feet long. Very different from Iguanas They have a long forked tongue which seems to serve the purpose of fingers to gauge the size of food & feel substances near In hot weather they are very active & can even catch a bird on the wing. They eat frogs small game but are mostly fed on liver. One was often seen on the walls of Dr Moffats old garden at Kuruman. They were not known before 1845 as a distinct genus

Had this heavy rain occurred earlier it would have arrested our progress considerably by flooding the many rivers & kloofs which we crossed before reaching here & now, we have no river of any consequence to pass we are told until after Queenstown: the only one which might impede the being bridged over We feel thankful for this & also for being in comfortable quarters during the time we are compelled to wait

I paid the firm of Greenslade 17/6 for a watch spring I called upon an old man one of the First English Settlers of 58 years ago

My dear Francis

Harrison Penney -

Fresh of all let me acknowledge thy kind letters & their various hints & varied contents, for all of which I am much obliged - & for thy kind care in sending us the Box, with I hope to receive at Port Elizabeth - Many thanks too for thy liberal contribution, the more so, when I remember the times of severe commercial depression, at present affecting so many of my dear Friends - I can fancy thee & Phine, snugly round the fire abroad 8 pm with the wind roaring outside or else a still frosty, as the case may be - Can I help thee to picture mine - Mountains all round us - lightning in the distant sky - Orion over head & the Southern Cross not very far above the horizon - The moon a little past the full shines on my tent - The night is still the canvas only just stirs to the cradle sweeping he have now had nearly 12 months of Tent life, during which the powers of endurance has been sometimes "pretty considerably" tested by night & by day.

No one should undertake, and a journey without first counting the cost & being prepared to endure it. Do not suppose me, for one moment, flinching. I could love to go over the ground again, thus an increase of "weariness & painfulness" rather than miss the great & immediate privilege, of being in this wonderful land, may I venture to say an ambassador for Christ.

I have learned to love many in this land who live & labour for them & the King, & to feel deeply interested for those among whom they minister. I love also to look forward to the time when the sowers and the reapers will rejoice together.

The last years of 1878 & the first of 1879 were spent at Wittenberger, a Wesleyan Station, where worthy Samuel Giddy (44 years a servant of the Lord in South Africa) has never in that long period, gone home, to his father land, with his wife & family & save us a kindly welcome.

It was the walk night & in silence the Colonial Superintendent & for Pugh spending whole people Langly Patching & myself among them; entering the old gaunt place to the sun. About 10 p.m. we repaired to the Chapel already well filled by the Colored congregation (Southern as few years ago) who were singing hymns as we entered. A full opportunity was given me to address the people - two interpreters rendering into Dutch & Xosa (I think) but it was a very mixed company.

At Alwal North we were kindly entertained by the primitive Methodist Founder, the only one in South Africa. He arranged for my speaking to the Colored Congregation & also to have one proper & when evening a meeting was held "after the manner of Friends", at which were Dutch Reformed, Dissenters, Episcopalians, Wesleyan Baptists & Friends. Many were led to pour out together, the Holy Ghost & the Gospel was preached; to an attentive audience. Langly Patching after reading 35 Chap. Isa. & John said perhaps to much by him & I. - Next evening in the same room, I gave some account of Northern Lands & travel and embraced the opportunity thus afforded to [illegible]

Next day we were detained by an African summer pour down - 3 inches in 36 hours! moreover our Wagon needed repair - We left yesterday morning, & to day, the spring of the Wagon broken detained us for 7 to 8 hours - The grass which is very bare & Fodder scarce & dear - for an sheaf of Oats (a baby sheaf of about four pounds weight or very little more) I paid one shilling & six pence - multiply this for a night feed for the 8 mules & it will be seen to be costly work to travel in this land - For ourselves we could buy no bread, so happily, having some flour, Lady Vitchy made a bread cake - we carry a little oven with us - Wood is very scarce, so dry manure is resorted to, which with a little wood, or alone in case of need, gives a good tho not lasting heat - Next week I hope we may be at Shiloh one of the Moravian Stations south of Queens Town - By degrees we aim to work southward to Port Elizabeth

I like to take a walk after breakfast in the morning, the oxen taken by the Wagon & 8 miles - then, with the mind clear, in the freshness of the morning, I write ... many mentally letters

+ paid smaller get them fairly in paper, for some of my friends at Salisbury & elsewhere, to whom is my love, full & free, as they rise up before me in living & loving memories

Farewell - with my love to these dearly ... Samuel Shaw

9. I Left Hiwal . . . ork this morning at 10·30 Caldecott and Dr Rees coming to see us off & say farewell & the former to impress upon me that he must have my photo sent him. We travelled 2 hours over roads made heavy with rain & outspanned at the foot of the road going up the mountain commencing the ascent after dinner & travelling an additional 3½ hours till we outspanned on high ground at 6 P.M.

10. I We had only trekked 25 minutes this morning when the leather springs at the left side of the coach which had been looking rather suspicious suddenly snapped at a little unevenness in the road & we had to unload there & then set to work to mend it as best we could In this we were materially helped by a Boer (Dutch Farmer or Boer (David Fourie, Zuur Vlakte Klip Spruit, Neck.) who lent us his horse to send Abdol 4 miles to the blacksmith at the Neck to get two or three small screw bolts to rivet it with. While he was absent I made plain bread & a cake. J.S. was reading & old Gouger was looking after the wandering mules. It was 5 o'clock before we were loaded ready to start again so that we only travelled 1¾ hour till through the Neck of Klip Spruit buying some forage of the hotel keeper & post master there for 1/3 the bundle & outspaning @ 6·45. (During pitching the tents & the "boys" going for water the mules gave us the slip & it was useless to go after them till the moon arose at a quarter past nine. Strong sheet lightening all around

11. I The mules had strayed many miles & were not found until late this morning both men went after them at sun rise & I chopped the wood made the fire & prepared our breakfast without them J.S. in his tent in blissful ignorance all the while – not knowing but that men & mules had turned up together over night.

Jamestown — Storm Berg. Shelton's Hotel. 6,300 ft.

The coach required a little more screwing up & it was a quarter past eleven before we were able to leave our nights outspan. In 1¾ hour or at one o'clock we rode through the little village called Jamestown distant from Aliwal about 39 miles or 6½ hours Post Cart. But we had been 9½ hours in reaching it without reckoning our delays & outspans. We went on for ½ an hour & outspanned for 2 hours till 3.30 & in 4 hours more or 4½ from Jamestown reached Shelton's Hotel at 7.30 p.m. on the top of Storm Berg 6300 to 6500 feet said to be the highest inhabited spot in S. Africa or the Colony. Two or three miles further on the road the landlord says it is 300 ft. higher. Rain was threatening all day & a little fell during last night pattering on the tents & this morning whilst folding up my wrappers & stretcher I was too warm without my coat & only linen trousers on whilst as soon as ~~I~~ I got into my bedroom on arrival I put on woolen drawers & buttoned up my coat it was so very cold. Shelton's Hotel is reckoned 15 miles from Jamestown or 2½ hours P. Cart. We had really tender cold lamb & pork for supper with good bread & butter after which I & Hall read part of Matt. 9 & knelt in prayer. In some rocks & caves 6 or than a mile from the farm are some very good Bush man paintings of men & animals some of the latter represented in a natural manner leaping & running especially a lion & rhinoceros & an eland. A week ago some flinty-stone arrow heads were dug out within the cave & the paintings are supposed to be about 30 or 40 years old, at least it is that length of time since the Bushmen lived here. There are still some living at the sources of the Drakensberg. A days ride from here elands & hartebeest are still to be met with, whilst close at hand there are only three bucks & a few springbucks &.

One of them eat the petal of a flower. We had our sitting together In the afternoon by arrangement J.S. held a little sitting with the landlord his wife & three sons, reading first the VII Romans & Psalm addressing each individually & collectively & ending with prayer & silence.

Our landlords son has a nice little collection of horns including the Water-buck's which curve forward but in other respects resemble the sable antelope's. Our landlady asked me if I had got any quagha skins & kindly gave me one from the Transvaal "as a present in remembrance of our visit with them"

Our landlady is a good little woman & had heard of my providential escape at Morija & on mentioning how we had been enabled to cross rivers, which directly after had become impassable; & on some occasions had just got into our destination, as at Benoonvale; & how thankful we were to have got under her roof this cold rainy night – she remarked "Yes you seem to have been under an especial Providence. Then J. Sharp gave his often repeated proverb "Those who mark the hand of Providence, shall never want a Providence to mark. And I think the travelling mercies and overruling care & protection & comforts are such as fall to the lot of very, very few in these parts

We passed an hotel & outspanned after trekking 3 hours at 2.50 P.m. till 4 P.m. After dinner we trekked 3 hours till 7 P.m. when we pitched our tents a couple of miles or so past the Junction Hotel "Holl House which was undergoing repairs & could not entertain us. Very bare grass, but for the first time after a long period we have come once more into the neighbourhood of mimosa trees or bushes & have not had to fall back upon cow-dung

Mountains are on all sides. We drove to Stubbs (Central) Royal Hotel where after having lunch we walked out & called first on Theophilus Stubbs where we saw Edward James Barrel a young man who said he ran away from Hottham & Whiting's when he was a boy from reading a book of Sailors adventures which he got out of the Mechanics Institute He is now a Wesleyan Missionary living at Khamasta & desires to be remembered to Joseph Latchmore of whom he has a kindly recollection of help rendered in connection with some schools. Two or three other Wesleyan Ministers were there who had been attending the District Meeting. J.J. escorted us to see Wilberforce Philip, brother of J. Durant & son of the late Dr Philip. It seems he had passed us last night as we were getting up our beds & a young lady Miss Grisedale who had been our fellow passenger on board the Dunrobin Castle remarked to him I believe that is Mr Sharp. He was preparing on to get to Lepeyton before night. He said you must speak at the Wesleyan Missionary Meeting tonight for it is all Wesleyan & I am tired of hearing all Wesleyan & nothing else here & you can tell us of all the places you have seen. We had not been long returned to our hotel before a fellow passenger of the Dunrobin in the person of Geo Weaver put in an appearance & said he was deputed by their Secretary to ask J.S. to speak at their meeting tonight.

The Meeting was pretty well attended & one or two good speeches given tho. J.S. was the best. The district had suffered by the war, the smoke & firing of which was seen & heard in the town which, about the time of the frequently mentioned battle of Guadanha was at one time in danger.

One Speaker, Hargreaves said as Mr Sharp has told you about a dog's tail I will tell you about an ox tail. You know when we have a cow or an ox taken with lung sickness we inoculate the rest in the tail end, from the diseased lungs. Now if this inoculation goes on all right or in other words, if it takes, the tail joint swells. Sometimes it does not take, it does not swell: just so, we have many people who hear the Gospel; who come in contact with Christianity, but they don't swell!

Another speaker believed that the white & black races all over Africa would live in harmony together if they were all christianised & that then there would be, no desire as there was, no occasion to improve the native race off the face of the earth

15. I Isaac Sharp requested an opportunity to meet with the Wesleyan Ministers which was readily granted this morning at the opening of the days proceedings when after a few moments of silence he addressed them with feeling at some length & knelt in prayer. I told them I had nothing to say to them like my aged friend but I did wish to say there lived in my heart a warm place for them & for all who were labouring for & with their Lord & in this noble work I could heartily wish them God Speed. We shook hands with them all about 13 retired. "Brother Quigdale" engaged in prayer on our behalf after &c.

We next called upon the Civil Commissioner (John Hemming Esq) & presented letter from the Colonial office he is a pleasant man of not much over 40. Wilberforce Buxton Philip, called & went with us. He says of the 25 years Queenstown has been formed he has lived in it for the last fifteen. He is well acquainted with John McKenzie & visited him at Kuruman in the days of Dr. Moffat & showed me a photograph taken by himself of MacKenzie & his wife & others of their old residences at Phillopolis & Hankey

The day is warm with the thermometer at 94° in the shade, cooler in the house where the hot air from the outside has been excluded. I have felt my head hot all day indicating a thunder storm, in which way & slightly aching it has not yet quite ceased to be a tolerable Barometer. Rain last night & thunder Grapes are turning, almost ripe enough to eat; and peaches & nectarines were sold in the market Sqr at an early hour this morning according to South African Custom by auction

Our coach has again undergone some repairs by the blacksmith, who charged four pounds for ~~nearly~~ not quite two days work. Unlike the one at Masitisi who charged seven & expressed himself at receiving four pounds as quite satisfied; this man said I will have the four pounds or I will make you a present of the job & actually walked off till I called him back 1879 — Shilo. Goshen. Shilo.

16. I Left Queenstown a 8.30 after reeking 3¼ hours out[s]ide near a drift for now a storm threatening. After reeking 1 hour more we passed through the village of Whitesea which has a Wesleyan chapel & Episcopalian Church And in less than ½ an hour after during a thunder storm entered the Moravian M.S. of Shilo where in the verandah F.S. at once recognised Samuel White from his resemblance to his brother whom he had seen in Labrador.

17. I It was arranged last night with our United Brethren that they would convey us to Goshen this morning 3½ hours with light cart & four horses over the Drakens=-berg Mountains here we met with a hearty welcome from brother Stephan (Steffan) & it was arranged between him & our companion E. Theodore White that I Sharp should have the opportunity of addressing the natives at their usual evening gathering A thunder storm burst in the afternoon as usual & to be expected at this season of the year

18. I Rain in the night continuous & all morning what might be called a Scotch mist in which we took leave of this out of the way Moravian M.S. of Goshen again performing the distance of about 21 miles in 3½ hours as before enlivened and instructed by the quaint & philosophic religious remarks of brother White. Earnest Theodore Weitz We have our sleeping quarters & sitting room together in the main building; but take our principal meals in the house of brother Baur & his wife who have but one child at home. He took me into his study this afternoon which is full of natural curiosities & native articles as assegais sticks leather headwork &c. He is a well known & good botanist & two of his specimens sent to Gilbert Baker at Kew have been named after him Baurii as the Hypoxis and the Hesperantha. He gave me a pair of the horns of the smallest antelope known at least in South Africa the Antelope pygmaea, Blaauwbok of the Boers & Impuki (plural amapuki) of the Kaffirs. Also the horns of the Red Rheebok Called by the Kaffirs – Engxala & of the Grey or Common Rheebok Kaffir name Iliza & the horns of which go straight up ||

19.I The large Ch. holding 500 or nearly was well filled this morning & were addressed by J. Sharp in the 2nd portion of the sitting & twice interpreted first Dutch then Kaffir at the same time. Also in the evening. In the afternoon the four missionaries & their wives assembled for a little meeting when J.S. expressed his interest & feeling on their behalf with exhortation & encouragement which was acknowledged by Bro White (Veiz)

20.I " Geo Weaver & his friend Thomas from the Magiba near the Pathlalla Drift rode over from Whittlesea this morning taking the opportunity of seeing us & Shilo at the same time. He does not expect to see England for twenty years

At 3 o'clock we took a loving farewell of the Brethren & Sisters at Shilo & the children & teachers assembled round the coach & sang a few verses of a farewell hymn which it was very pleasant to hear & quite a number of them ran after the coach for a mile or two as we went on the road to Engotini which we reached in 1½ hour & there again it was very agreable to be greeted by the old & young together by a hymn & welcome & greetings from the coloured Elders of Samuel Banders's congregation who with his wife welcomed us at the coach side, some yards from their garden gate. They are a young Xn[ian] christian couple, true disciples of Christ with their hearts fully in the mission work & it was a pleasure to be with them & they seemed as tho. they could not say enough to thank us for visiting them. A meeting was held at 7.30 to which many of the native Kaffirs came from a distance of 2½ hours over the ranges of mountains.

Engotini is considered an Out-Station of Shilo & is only about 6 miles distant & is on the way to Grahamstown over the Kat Berg range & is the last of the Moravian missions we expect to visit in S. Africa. There are one or two in Kaffraria as Bazeya where our host L. R. Baur was formerly stationed Writing of the condition of Basutoland in 1861, Sir Godfrey Lagden says: "The French missionaries . . . pursued faithfully the aim to which they had devoted themselves, that of educating and elevating the race. . . . European clothing, implements, and manufactured goods came into general use."

A GREAT BASUTO CHIEF: MASUPHA (IN UNIFORM) AND HIS STANDARD-BEARER.

Masupha, third son of the great Basuto chief, Moshesh, was a warlike chieftain. Summing up his character at his death after a defeat by a rival chief, in 1898, Sir Godfrey Lagden writes: "In him the Basuto lost an ideal chief whom they admired because he was a great warrior and a sturdy champion for independence. . . . With all his faults he had the merit of being a man of his word."

The Kat Berg

21·I We left Engotini at 9·30 this morning outspanning at the end of 3 hours after passing a neat little stone bridge over a small stream at the foot of the Cat Berg it rather a portion of the way up its gradual ascent as this is its northern side which is devoid of tree & shrub. After a 2 hours rest 1 hour more brought us to Hex's Hotel which is reckoned to be 7 miles from the top. There we concluded to stay the night as we could not get to the bottom on the other side before dark After writing a little we took a walk before sun down on to the top of one of the hills were glad afterwards to get in doors have our supper it was so cool

22·I The tops of the ridges were hid in mist this morning not dispersed till after 7 I took a walk before breakfast to a hill where a few months before a hundred & two loyal Fingoes were encamped with their Captain &c. so long close to a canteen not a single case of drunkenness was known Our landlady declined to join us during our scripture reading Forage 1/3 a bundle meals & bed 2/6 each & sitting room 2/6 It was a quarter past 8 before we resumed our ascent up the winding road of the mountain we made a many turns & doubles in the 2 hours it occupied it in reaching the top which here seems to be 6150 feet above the sea level

On commencing our descent on the Southern side of the ridge a grand & distant prospect opened up before us whilst in the kloofs near at hand tall timber trees – a rare sight to us now relieved the eye & formed an agreeable shade as the road cut into the steep mountain sides in which they grew; from the rocky ledges of which hung delicate ferns & beautiful flowers of varied tint among them seemed a stony growing kind of Woodsia

IV

We had not proceeded very far when at a sharp ankle in the road a loaded wagon was precipitated into the precipice below only the evening before & a dozen men were now employed saving what they could from the wreck. We were informed it was the fourth wagon which had come to such an untimely end at this very spot. That accidents of this kind were very frequent the wonder for the steep mountain sides on which the road is cut have no wall & in some parts as here not even a loose stone as a guard or protection to keep the wheels from slipping over

After proceeding 2 ¾ hours we outspanned under the shelter of the rocks at the road side for 2¼ hours & cooked some mushrooms gathered in the early part of the day. Morning trek 4 ¾ hours. Another 1½ hour & we reached Philipton at the foot of the Kat Berg Winterberg range James Read's station & were welcomed by his son a missionary* James Philip Read in the absence of his parents a young man full of spirits & varied information relative to missions & missionaries which he takes a delight in imparting

James P. Read accompanied us an hours ride on horseback this morning to the little village of Balfour to see Thompson an old man nearly 90 formerly of the Glasgow Society of Missions; but since its breaking up a minister of the D. R. Ch. as being but another phase of Presbyterianism He remarked he left England before railways were introduced. He is active still & remembers James Backhouse & G. W. Walker's visit & seemed pleased & cheered with our call & appreciated the prayer which I Sharp offered for him & his wife before we left

One or two of the Natives here remember J. B. & G. W. W.

Balfour is on the road to Beaufort but we do not need to go quite into it unless we like

Phillipston — an evening Meeting

After tea we attended the evening worship of the natives in the Chapel. They were singing hymns as we entered & when they had finished E.S. asked for a brief space for silent waiting upon God that we might endeavour to feel His presence in our midst. "By Thy grace we will" was the refrain of the last hymn they sang & the subject he took up. After which he told them of some answers to prayer for rain we had been informed of in the interior & also of the heathen Esquimaux woman who prayed she be taken back to the mission station & was overheard by some traders who told her to cast on her lot with them for they were on their way &. Prayer was also offered & then an old man Consent, said I am reminded of Paul & Barnabas by the visit of you gentlemen & I think it almost providential that you have been directed here to the place where as I well remember your friends Messrs Backhouse & Walker paid us a visit. Another hymn was voluntarily sung by the people as E.S. sat down before Consent spoke his thanks commencing "There is a land that is fairer than day &" — and

We shall meet on that beautiful Shore &

And when Consent sat down I said I thought I should like to say a few words to you on the subject of your last hymn that beautiful hymn which speaks of a land that is fairer than day, & where nothing that is impure or unholy can ever enter, but only those who have put off the old man and his deeds & have put on the Lord Jesus Christ &c & and I desired that when they sang this beautiful hymn they might bear this in mind. I also said how glad I was to meet with any one who remembered Jas B. & G. W. W.

The congregation dispersed singing an evening hymn in Dutch. And there came one of their number who had been deputed to ask us to stay with them a few days longer & not depart on the morrow which they had been informed was our intention 1829 James Read was the first missionary of Philipton and his son James Read now living succeeded him who has always remained on this station & brought it to be self supporting — this son our present host in the absence of his father is ~~on a visit here from~~ a missionary at Hankey only an hour & half horseback from Shilo — James Philip Fairbairn Read whose sister we saw at Kuruman the wife of John Brown also L.M.S.

James Read the elder this coterie[illegible] both married Hottentots women J.P.F. Read would pass for an English man this father is not very dark

24. I James Read arrived home late last night & we met VI just before breakfast. He has prevailed upon us to stay the week end & used as an argument that Backhouse & Walker were with him some weeks making this their head quarters from whence they radiated to other places He says his station has been 25 years self supporting but complains of Dr Mullens the Secretary of the L.M.S. for entirely throwing him off in the face of this congregation from the drought & war having been unable during the past two years to support him & actually owe him salary for 2 years. Yet he can get nothing from the parent society which he thinks is not a handsome or fair way of treating a missionary who has worked his station for so long to a self supporting State

Philipton is united to the Congregational Union of South Africa which numbers according to the report of 1878 twenty Churches in various parts of the Colony It has about 80 people living close to the Mission Station & 3570 belonging to the congregation with an average attendance of 450. & 611 Church Members. It has 10 outstations with an attendance of 520 & an ordinary income of £171 & one of about 140 £ for special purposes

We called on the three sisters of Jas Read

25 I VII The Winterberg range merges into the Kat Berg range to the West of where we crossed it. A little to the South & East of the road we descended by rising out from the slope of the Katberg is Didima a sharpish conical mountain with the small river Kat at its base on the South side of which Philipston is situated. This mountain & the slopes of the Katberg range give rise to several valleys which have been named after distinguished philanthropists & missionaries as Readsdale, Cushington, Buxton

We were taken a few miles ride this morning by James Read & his son James P. F. into the head of the Readsdale valley where in a densely wooded kloof a stream runs over some rocky ledges whose sides are covered with maidenhair & as I gathered a frond or two James R. informed me Jas Backhouse had been here before me with a number of them in a pick nic party

On some of the rocks were Bushman paintings which J.R. estimates at least as 100 years old they are rapidly becoming obliterated from the soft nature of the rocks

Near by was a horse back road over the Kat berg which J.R. informed us J.B & G.W.W. travelled over on their way to Shilo

The prominent Gika Mountain was before us a remarkable high, steep, level-topped Conical eminence visible as a land mark a few score miles away

In the year 1839 a combined missionary effort was inaugurated chiefly by James Read the Elder on behalf of the Bushmen living in these mountains the Queenstown district where a M. S. was formed named Freemanton which had a well qualified Native teacher for the spiritual work, & another native with a number of helpers for the temporal work supplied with ploughs & oxen James Read jr. took journies into the mountains to induce them to come & settle on the station

Two other Bushman stations were formed in the Tambukie districts on the Black & the White Kei rivers one of which was named Sekhalakha

Another was formed near the present Greytown beyond the Kei river to this the Bushmen flocked this people willingly came induced by the meat & pumpkins freely offered without the need of working for it. Their teacher was a Hottentot-Bushman (with a Bushman wife) named Plaatjett Alvon: he was ajisted by Hendrick Hendrickes and

This mission existed until the year 1851 when they were attacked by the Tambookies & obliged to disperse having retaliated & been overcome

These missionary efforts James Read says were not without some good fruits which began to be seen one year after their commencement first in the case of the married daughter of the Chief 27 years old who was deeply exercised, saw her sins all arrayed before her as in a glass. Her faith in the Saviour became strong her love to Him unbounded the work of grace in her heart was beautifully brought out in her life & conversation. She died in the faith three years afterwards. She & each of the others who received the truth voluntarily tried to impart

it to others sent into the mountains on frequent expeditions for this purpose

They were all of the small type of Bushmen

The children taken into the Schools were of the age of 10 to 15 & sat with both hands & feet on the benches with a Kaross thrown over their shoulders. They were taught reading writing Dutch & English & were keen & quick to acquire the art of singing & committing pieces of poetry to memory. Jas Read jr. took three of the girls into his family for servants Had them for some time. One of them called Anna Lucy could learn any piece of poetry in English & repeat it as well as any English girl. A favourite piece of hers which she often recited with feeling & in a most masterly manner was that of Thos Pringle entitled

Afar in the Desert I love to ride
With the silent Bush-Boy alone by my side

She and another one both died of Consumption
The third who was named Maria was married to a heathen Bushman & removed away.

The Bushmen call themselves Abatwa

Jas Read the Second, preached the Inaugural Mission Sermon using for his Text that passage from Isiah – The inhabitants of the rocks shall sing

A Lushington near here lived an old Hottentot who had long resisted the Gospell message until he was close upon the age of 70 in the year 1839 when he visited Bethelsdorp in Van Der Kemp's time became truly converted by the labours of a native evangelist there & for five years after the remainder of his earthly existence lived an exemplary life at Lushington. When on his death bed he sent for the present James Read to see him Who said Well Conrad how are you getting on? & received the reply — If I had not a Saviour I do not know what will become of me: in His strength I can conquer I can fancy I saw Satan flying away when Christ said on the cross it is finished. I am not afraid to die I am now going to a world of peace. I die in the faith & hope of the Gospel. Satan has power; but it is ~~only~~ as an old lion without teeth: he can only frighten, he cannot bite!

Van Der Kemp's First Convert at Graaffreinet was a married Hottentot ~~servant~~ named Cupido in the Landrost's house. The first time he heard Van Der Kemp preach drunkenness was the sin most touched upon & Cupido feeling conscience smitten went home and charged his wife with making known to the Missionary this his failing. But his wife declared her innocence. Next week he heard theft declaimed against amongst other things & rushed home to scold his innocent wife for telling all about him. How could the Missionary have known all about me if you had not told him for no one else but you know about me: His wife could not make him believe that she had not made his farings public. The next occasion Van Der Kemp spoke of the sins of the heart of evil thoughts & imaginations & again with conviction to Cupido's heart, who thought that must be a queer book which can tell the missionary all that I have done. My wife can't have told him this for she did not know; & very likely I have blamed her unjustly before

Whilst Jas Read was telling us these interesting facts A. Van. Rooyen a native minister & his son a theological student of Lovedale having heard of our arrival had come a three hours horseback journey from 7 miles of Beaufort in order to see us & he commenced telling us how a comrade of his came to be converted to Christianity.

He had two wives not married according to the Christian law but bought by cattle; & one of them who had embraced christianity began to think it was dishonourable & unchristian to live with a man who had another wife & thought of leaving him. For this her husband beat her very much ill used her when he knew of her attending Christian worship; but this did not prevent her from going again on the first opportunity And the husband finding all his abuse did not lessen or interfere with his wife's observance of the Christian faith, began to think it was very strange & queried within himself what could be the reason. And once when out in the veld alone, the thought struck him that he might try to pray and see what the result would be. He did so. When the light of divine truth burst in upon his mind & troubled his soul. Returning home his wife saw his troubled looks & quiet brooding & at length fearing lest something was designed against herself, ventured to ask him what was the matter. He informed her he had been praying & had ever since felt his mind greatly troubled with it. She talked with him & suggested that he had not prayed properly & had better try again. Which he did: & was not long before he avowed himself a christian, parted with his heathen wife giving her back to her father along with suitable provision: & lived happily with his christian wife in a consistent manner

I A large congregation this morning, who seem to be mostly Hottentots & Griquas or Half casts & three or four whites attracted by the news that two Quakers friends of James Backhouse & Geo. W. Walker were expected to be in attendance. The congregation sang well & clear, a prayer was offered in Cape Dutch by Van Kooyen another hymn and then I. Sharp stood up in the pulpit (J.R. interpreting) using the words On the last day, that great day of the feast Jesus stood & cryed if any man thirst let him come unto me and drink &c &c. After the assembly was over & dispersed a little one of their number Vincent (vansent) commonly called The Doctor came & asked I.S. for an account of his wanderings & how he had found the work of the Lord in distant places. So the bell was rung again as no time was thought so good as the present

26. I
I In the evening the pulpit was occupied by the young Hottentot Timothy, son of A. Van Rooyen who preached a powerful & able sermon from the text — Am I my brothers keeper — pointing it home to all present Relating a case of a hopeful son taught by his parents to drink moderately, but when he left the parental roof returned after some years a confirmed drunkard unable to control his appetite. You will all have to answer the question Where is thy brother Where is thy son? Where is thy sister? As christians we are all each others keepers & will have to answer this question
This Hottentots sermons was delivered in Cape Dutch & interpreted at the time sentence by sentence for our benefit into English

II With Jas P. F. Read I went this morning on horseback for a distance of about 6 miles to the pretty village of Seymour where is a Magistracy & the military Station of Eland's Post We called on Caldecott the Wesleyan minister also Dr Pearson with whom we dined & who with his wife returned to Philipston with us for an hour or two
I found a letter had been addressed to "Mr Sharp and Mr Kitching inviting you to a humble tea & soiree this evening" ~~Hugo~~ signed by Vincent an Elder of the Church on behalf of himself & the natives who are living near by. About a hundred were present a dozen of whom had pleasant recollections of our friends James Backhouse & Geo. W Walker

Story of Macobana.

Macobana, was a Fingoe Chief who formerly lived around Philipston N.S. He was a great warrior: but when for the first time he had to contend with gunpowder and firearms, was overcome: His people did not understand it. they thought it was thunder & lightening which the victorious force was able to turn to their own account. He said to his warriors "we, who have always beaten others are now beaten ourselves". We cannot contend with this fire from heaven; & he retired from the fight. And when sought for by his people, who desired him to lead them on to battle again on the morrow, and give them an opportunity of retrieving their fortunes; they found him sitting alone at the head of a wooded kloof, with folded arms, in sorrowful contemplation. Come, lead us on, said they. No, - he said calmly. I will tell you what you must do. You must now learn the lesson of submission. Go, and disperse yourselves amongst other people; let us wait our time, and it may be our fortunes will revive.

They did disperse: & became servants in other tribes & were looked down upon by them & called their dogs.

In time the Missionary came & taught them to plough & to sow & to attend to horses & cattle, & thus, their position as servants, (by the woeful occupations they were taught to perform) became their very strength & advancement; with not the least, their embracing the truths of christianity & learning to read and write.

Macobana himself embraced the christian faith and became anxious to impart it to others:

96 27. I Philipton Macobana. Dr Van Der Kemp and James Read.

& preached beyond the White Kei to the Kaffirs, amongst whom he was dwelling for natend. Some of nem thinking nem recognised a former enemy said amongst themselves is not that Macobana the great Warrior who used to fight against us; & one of them went up to him & put the question to him: Are you not Macobana who used to fight against us? Yes, he said, I am, But I have dropped my old weapons & changed them for these. I fight with these now! turning to his bible & hymn book.

He died a happy death about 25 years ago.

Soon after the formation of the London Miss Society in 1795 (Dr Vanderkemp & Kicherer were the two first missionaries sent to South Africa under their auspices. Two years later - in 1801 James Read joined Vanderkemp at Graafreinet & they were associated together until the death of the former who was about 47 when he arrived in the colony & Read was only 19. They had seen each other in the Mission offices before leaving London but not to speak to. From Graffreinet where they remained only about 8 months they went to Bota's Camp near Port E. & thence to Bethelsdorp where they remained together till 1811 when Doctor Van Der Kemp died in Cape Town on his intended journey to Madagascar. Graffreinet was at that time the most distant frontier town.

In 1815 James Read went to Lataku & Kuruman. Had the foundation of the Mission there before ever Dr Moffat had seen the Bechuana Country & there he remained 5 years until 1820 when he returned to Bethelsdarp for about 9 years until 1829 when he went to the Kat River Settlement & established the present Philipton Mission Station on which he remained until his death

His son the present James Read commenced his mission course from 1833 to 1835 — when war broke out and Sir Benjamin D'Urban ordered them off the place. They did not return till 1838 from which time until now he has continued on the spot

28·I We took a numerous farewell of Philipton this fore noon & Reading the trader declined pay for the mules' forage. ~~Jan~~ A Hottentot lent his 8 strong fresh oxen to draw us up the steep mountain sides & so save the strength of the mules. We left at 10 o'clock James Read riding along with us on his way to Buxton and Vincent & Sjogt Ch. Elders famous outriders The latter having his span of fresh oxen at a point a few miles beyond the mountain top to relieve the others but which we did not think needful to avail ourselves of. Just at 12 o'clock the leather spring snapped & we came to a full halt by the road side & there unloaded It was the old place again & was this time somewhat prepared for it with new bolts prepared by the blacksmith in Queenstown. The jolts in the road with the heavy load had broken the bolts & snapped their head off – the leather itself was not much injured. We had it happily well repaired in little more than 1½ hour & then Old Gorgy lit the Fire, & we sat down to tea & coffee, a tin of veal & fresh bread-&butter; proceeding on our way again at 3.45. 2 hours more or total trek of 4 hours brot. us to Blinkwater the Station of A. van Rooyen.

We passed Fairbairn Balfour Bellville &c. Blinkwater is the District, Tidmanton the Mission Station where Arie J. van Rooyen the coloured minister is in charge who had previously invited us to stay with him He was born near Clarkson & apprenticed to a wagon maker a Boer who was not ready to afford him opportunities for instruction so that he was grown up before ever he had the chance of attending even a Sunday school & while he was obliged to walk three hours. He was ordained in the colony under the auspices of the L.M.S. but his congregation out & not him independent of that Society Hes. like Jas Read's the last two years have been trying times with them She hardly knows where to turn for Supplies While we were with him an anonymous letter arrived containing a five pound note with the initials C H K & post mark Cape Town. We thot it w be Dr Kirkwig there.

IV After breakfast A Van Rooyen's son Timothy who is a theological student at Lovedale guided on horseback over the mountains to Heald Town a wesleyan Training institution named after a rich member of the Society of Stockport whose daughter still continues to benefit the institution. They were not in full session, but the ringing of the bell brot many from their fields & presently about 200 people assembled in the spacious chapel an explanation of our visit was given & J. Sharp addressed them by means of a native teacher. We returned home after dinner having been agreably entertained by the two ministers in residence Hunter, & Barton whose wife a native of Colchester is acquainted with a friend Shewell there We did the return journey in 1¾ hour Fort Beaufort town is visible 7 miles distant, 600 feet nearer the sea level Notice of the meeting for Tidmanton was given out the day before to be held at sun down this evening & we might have remained over-night at Heald Town & as some of them did not want to be late they began coming so early as 9 o'clock in the morning! & we met several on the road as we were going to Heald Town About 300 assembled & they heard the same sentence in three different languages J. Sharp's English rendered into Dutch for the Hottentot portion by Jas. P. F. Read,

1879 Tidmanton

29. I and. d into Kaffir by a fluent native. A good IV. feeling was over the meeting, & at its close one of their number thanked us for the visit & D.S. for his sermon

30. I Our little tarriance at Tidmanton came to an end V this morning at 9.45 Mrs van Rooyen a pleasant little Hottentot woman of considerable lateral dimensions said she was very pleased to have had us visit them & had heard so much of the Society of Friends that she was quite curious to see some of them in order to tell what they looked like. I said I was very glad to have been with them & wished she could have seen a better specimen than myself which so tickled her fancy that of her two able daughters that they all burst into a hearty laugh. One of the latter is a pretty animated little lassie & keeps the Post Office. Mrs van R. thot. I should like the shell of their large mountain tortoise.
Timothy, with James P. T. Read, accompanied us an hour - then horses fastened behind - to the old site of Joseph Williams' early labours: 5 of which, nothing seems to remain above ground, but his marble tomb stone, railed round and, somewhat recently done, by his widow who married again, became Mrs. Robson. She died only a few days ago at Port Elizabeth.
For an account of his labours see Doctor Philips Researches: printed in London, under the auspices of the L.M.S.

The following is a copy of the Inscription on the Slab. -

In Memoriam Of Rev^d Joseph Williams, who departed this life the 17th Aug. 1818. Aged 38 years An Agent of the London Missionary Society, and the First Missionary who with his family resided among the Amoxcose Tribes & preached the Gospel of Christ to them.

Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord from henceforth: Yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labours; and their works do follow them

In 2 hours we passed through Beaufort & outspanned in 1 hour afterwards for dinner; when another trek of of 3 3/4 hours, total 6 3/4 brought us to Jones' Richmond Hotel on the Koonap Heights about 5 or 6 miles from the Koonap Riv.

Mr Read was there too: Said A. Van Rooyen

31. I Left the Richmond Hotel, Koonap heights 7.15 this morning our road lay down hill for 5 miles or so until in 1¾ hour we crossed the Koonap river by a good bridge of stone & wood & paid the hotel toll-keeper 2/-. At 11.30 we passed through the village of Fort Brown having previously outspanned for ½ an hour to water the mules & give them a roll in the dust. We made our noon outspan from 12.15 till 2 P.M. Total trek during the morning 4½ hours Great Fish River

We now began our steep ascent up wooded mountain sides, the slopes from the edge of the road being as steep & precipitous as those on the Kat Berg; in some places 1000 to 2000 feet without a break in the descent

Volunteers were moving about as we neared Botas Camp & Hotel being suddenly called to the front on account of the defeat of the British troops on the Zulu border at the battle of Isandalata

Here Gen. Wolseley's father in law of Lieut. King who had been on board the Dunrobin came up to us and informed us we were expected to take up our quarters with his son-in-law, & that he himself would take charge of our 8 mules. The coach rode on to give notice of our approach. An hour afterwards we arrived in Grahamstown over a good level road

1. II VII Robt. King kindly placed his carriage at our disposal this morning We called on Walker the Secy. of the Bible Society & agreed to be with them at their Annual Meeting of 4th day next, and arranged to invite the public to a meeting for worship on 2nd day evening next in the Shaw Hall sending out circulars

2. II I At Smith's col-congregation this morning where I.S. spoke & prayed being interpreted into Kaffer Afternoon R. King drove us & his wife to Manly Flats 10 miles out on the Port Alfred road where there is a little Wesleyan chapel it was his turn to preach at: but after opening the service he just stepped aside & I stept took his place at the desk. It was all English needing no interpretation The absence of men was very marked to be accounted for by so many having been called away to the frontier war. Both going & returning we had a distant view from the heights of 2000 feet of the Indian Ocean & of the Port Alfred district with the Kowie river wooded kloofs Kaffir's near at hand still over-run with the ferocious buffalo & tiger

3. II " In the morning writing — In afternoon making calls saw the museum, which wants more interest shown in it, also the Botanic Gardens & hot-houses superior to Cape Town's

3. II " The Meeting with the public was attended by about 250 people most of whom seemed to appreciate the solemnity of the occasion. I.S. spoke for about ¾ hour & knelt in prayer. No scripture was read. At the opening I said a few words relative to our mode of sitting down together in silence

1879 Grahams Town Bible Meeting – Hon Geo. Wood

4. II This morning we breakfasted with widow of III John Aylliff her son of Reuben Aylliff J.P. and daughter Sarah Ann: well known to the late Peter Bedford

At the evening party were Rev^d Tyrm & Mrs T. who know T. Harvey & C.O. Tregelles. Mrs T. was a Drant van heiresp. Wm Impey & Mrs J. John & Mrs Aylliff, Reuben A. & sister &c Wright, Chalmers, Chasmore &c &c

5. II Gad once a member of our Society called to take us to see IV the 'grotto' under glass of his brother in law Wood at West Hill. Alfred Alexander called

The Grahams Town Auxilliary Bible meeting this evening Sir Jacob Barry Kt Judge in the chair. I think managed my speech such as it was better than on any previous occasion. It was a damp evening too small attendance The Local Auxiliary was formed to com= =memorate the abolition of Slavery in 1834

6. II I took a drive to Fern Kloof. We took tea with the Hon.
V Geo. Wood one of the 1820 Settlers a religious man worth a ¼ million unable to walk but still a vigorous mind & member of Cape Parliament; who began life with a shilling as ox waggon leader. His wife is an agreeable lady this daughter who was living with them is the young widow of one of Wm Impey's sons. The house is richly furnished & full of curiosities. They gave me a tiger-cat bag taken from a Kaffir during the 1878 war just past. also a fine otter skin & Regina & pair of buck-backs horns
He has a number of Baines's paintings & a book of his photos with his own hand-writing description – & Capt. Harris' book of S. African animals coloured life like – elephant size.

9. XI. II. We attended the Wesleyan chapel with R K. This morning Geo. Chapman officiating Voice scarcely heard from an affected bombastic mode of utterance he acquired at Sierre Leone before the military. Sharp wrote on a scrap & sent it to him "May I speak a few words to the people before the Benediction" which was answered in the affirmative. His voice was heard all over the building. He thought there might be some there to whom John Wesleys description of Gospel hardened sinners might be applicable who had heard the gospel preached from time to time but not submitted themselves to its power. On walking home R Kay remarked well the Lord gave you a message for the people this morning for there are some there who have attended that chapel these 40 years & have never given themselves to Christ.

We afterwards heard that a lawyer was very much impressed by the Meeting on 2nd day the 3rd inst.

10. XI. II. We breakfasted with Jno Walker formerly secretary to the local Bible Society: & then called on Mrs Aylliff & afterwards on Wm Impey this wife was a Miss Wright Dau of Mrs Wright widow of a missionary of Cape Town. When we got back an old retired missionary Joseph Edwards (Wesleyan) called he was at Bothas Thaba Nchu. His no relation to Roger Edwards of L.M.S.

12. II Our stay at Grahamstown has been a pleasant one IV under the hospitable roof of our friend Robt. King & his wife Alice. He said if any of your friends come hereaway tell them my house is wide open: and shaking hands with me said "Well good bye, I feel the parting much, I cant tell you all I feel; the Lord be with you and bless you.
Tell all your friends who come here my house is wide open. His wife gave us many good things for the journey & we took leave at 8.20 A.M the sun shining brightly through a clear blue sky & the heat increasing as the day advanced till at noon the thermometer registered 104½° in the shade & the wind blew hot as from a furnace. And we afterwards saw grapes on the vines completely shrivelled up & baked & the leaves of pumpkins blackened & orange trees shrivelled. The heat of the ground was 130° & how much more I do not know for my thermometer would not register any higher & the quicksilver filled it up
We passed a spot called Seven Fountains where Jas. Backhouse & G. W. Walker held a Meeting. And in 7 hours trek & 2½ outspan reached the house of Richard Gush who was from home but received a kindly welcome from his wife & daughter Amy; who in speaking of her father's father being a Friend said She had read George Fox's Journal & thought she should like to be a Quaker. Their house is at Nazaar, a mile & half to the left of the road from the Nazaar Hotel where we enquired for their house

Joseph Gush Buchman's River

13. II We left our friends on the Nazaar farm at 8.30 a.m. and in 3¼ hours reached the house & farm of the other brother Joseph Gush on Buchman's River who also has a family eight children some married & his widowed mother living ~~living~~ with him Margaret Gush born Evans in 1790 & 89 years old a member of our society. Her husband is spoken of as having remained a consistent Friend to the last & to have shewn forth our peace principles among the Kaffirs on more than one occasion. Joseph G. is a member of the Cape Parliament & has been returned three times. Charlotte his wife is very fond of her garden & has a tree growing the seed of which was given her by J.B.

They occasionally use yeast from the simple pounded root of a Mesembryanthemum growing abundantly everywhere. They had long bought the root from the Kaffirs in its pounded state & the little darkie who pointed out the plant got a good tanning for it. The Hottentots call it "Kerri" & its Kaffir name is "gilika"

J.G. said I liked G.W.W. he was a great talker; J.B. was quiet, she was always going after a flower; but he was a noble preacher

J.G. is a great hunter & the & a neighbour lately brot. home 14 head of deer as the result of one days out in the forest with their rifles. The game is the Buck buck, duyker, blue buck &c & plenty of hares & otters in the river. He gave me an otter skin & blue-buck's the smallest S.A. antelope.

George the eldest married son & his wife came over from Sidbury during the afternoon from a ride of 3 miles, having been sent for to see the Friends. There are many ostriches on the farm. A mountain stream through a narrow rocky gorge opposite the house has been dry for three years now, but was never before known to stop running such is the unusual dryness of the land during the period of our visit, it seems to have extended over the whole S.A.

14. II
VI At Sidbury where George G.'s farm is situate service is held alternate weeks by Episcopals & Wesleyans during the forenoon I. Sharp has concluded to remain so as to hold a Meeting there on First Day afternoon whilst I agreed to go forward with mem to touch to Port Elizabeth

BIBLE SOCIETY

The annual meeting of the Port Elizabeth Auxiliary to the British and Foreign Bible Society was held in the Town-hall last evening under the presidency of A. C. Stewart, Esq. The night was wet, and consequently the audience was not so numerous as might be expected under more favourable circumstances. On the platform we observed Revds. Messrs. Rayner, T. Bennetts, Pettman, Macintosh, Stokes, and Johnston, Messrs. Kitching and Isaac Sharp, the deputation from the Parent Society, and the Hon. J. Geard.

Mr. Kitching seconded, and stated that on his first journey in this land he had attended 25 Bible Society meetings. He referred to his visit to Hopetown and the formation of an auxiliary there. Thence the deputation proceeded to Kuruman, which place the speaker described, and thence to Secheli's town. Proceeding onwards they went to Shoshong the most northerly town. They were going further but Col. Lanyon sent them a letter directing caution, for their own safety. They then returned to Bloemfontein and held a meeting, President Brand being in the chair. The young ladies of the Eunice Institute liberally subscribed. Thence the deputation went to Basutoland and visited all the French Mission Stations, returning via Queenstown to Grahamstown. Mr. Kitching then related several historical anecdotes in reference to the history of Bible circulation. The committee of the Bible Society in London is 15 ministers of the Church of England, 15 non-conformists and six others; the basis of the society is unsectarian. The income of the Parent Society was the sum of £227,500 received. There is a deficit of £15,000, so there is a good deal to be made up. The speaker thanked the colonists generally for the kind sympathy they had given the deputation.

The second resolution was moved by Mr. Sharpe in the following terms:—

That this meeting desires to express its fullest sympathy with the spirit and work of the British and Foreign Bible Society, receiving the Society as one of the noblest expressions of the quickened life of the Churches of Christianity in Britain and the colonies during the present century.

Mr. Sharpe, in a long and interesting speech, praised the atmosphere of South Africa. He said the previous speakers had said a good deal about religious denominations, but had said nothing about the Quakers, whose zeal in the dissemination of the Scriptures is second to none. He quoted from the report of the Parent Society, in which the Bible Society's labours were termed "the ministry of silence." He eulogised Sir Bartle Frere, who he apostrophized by saying: "How many of us here have a sympathy for that man in the straits and difficulties by which he has been and is surrounded?" The remark was received with loud applause. Mr. Sharpe was full of anecdote, and his speech was in every sense of the word general, since he referred to Continental towns and provinces, related the adventures of colporteurs, travelled through the dark continent back to Shoshong, took the audience among the native chiefs, of whom he related numerous anecdotes, detailing the manner of collecting subscriptions. At one native station upwards of £70 were collected. Mr. Sharpe was loudly cheered. 3/3/79

PORT ELIZABETH BIBLE SOCIETY.

Mr. L. Kitching, one of the delegates from the parent Society, seconded, giving a brief history of the proceedings of Messrs. Sharp, Harris, and himself since they first landed in South Africa, about fifteen months ago. Mentioning the return home of Mr. Harris and the visits of Mr. Sharp and himself to Uitenhage, Murraysburg, Richmond, and other towns in the colony, he went on until he came to their arrival at Kuruman, which then, he said, appeared to be a green and peaceful spot in a desert place. Before they had been ten days there this peaceful appearance had been destroyed, and the people were obliged to go into laager. Next, referring to their visit to the Chief Secheli,—whom he described as one whose mind was "well stored with Scriptural knowledge and Bible texts,"—he related an incident in which a "dashing young minister," who took the Chief for a noodle in Scriptural matters, was quietly bowled out by the Biblically learned Chieftain. He then related how they got as far as Soshoug, the most northerly point of their journey, and told how, on their return journey, they received timely warning from Col. Lanyon, the Administrator of Griqualand West, not to venture back by way of Kuruman, so that they turned their faces in the direction of the Diamond Fields. From the Diamond Fields they went to Bloemfontein, where they established a Bible Society; and from thence, in course of time, they passed through Basutoland, calling at the various French missionary stations, with which they were much pleased, and journeying on to Queen's Town and thence to Graham's Town, at the latter of which places they attended the last Bible Society's meeting. The speaker concluded by giving some particulars relative to the parent Society and seconding the adoption of the report, which was carried unanimously.

Mr. I. Sharp, the other delegate, spoke at considerable length in proposing the second resolution, which was to the following effect: "That this meeting desires to express its fullest sympathy with the spirit and work of the British and Foreign Bible Society, viewing that Society as one of the noblest expressions of the quickened life of the Churches of Christianity in Britain and her colonies during the present century." His speech mainly advocated the support of the colporteurs of the Society, and he quoted many anecdotes illustrative of the good work done by them in the face of many obstacles. Referring to the visit of himself and Mr. Kitching to Shoshong, the residence of Khama, he described that personage as "a great chief, a noble man, every inch a chief, and a Christian, taking part in the services of the Sabbath, but whose father is a deep-dyed heathen still." He gave an interesting description of his proceedings with Khama. A meeting was held with Khama, to whom it was told, through a local friend of the speaker's, that the Queen of England was patron of the Bible Society for the whole world, that Sir Bartle Frere was patron here, and it was asked: Would not Khama be patron of the Bible Society at Bamangwato? Khama took two days to consider, and then consented. Then the merchants of the place were visited, and they agreed that it was desirable that an Association should be formed, and ultimately one was formed. Then there was a meeting of about 70 of Khama's people—one of the most interesting Bible Society meetings he (the speaker) had ever attended. Several of Khama's people made speeches. Khama himself made a speech, which the speaker quoted from his notes. Subsequently, Khama made a contribution to the funds of the British and Foreign Bible Society of the value of about £20, and with what the merchants and others supplemented this by, the total subscription from Bamangwato was about £70 sterling (hear, hear). Towards the conclusion of his address the speaker expressed his concurrence in an opinion which had been expressed at a great meeting in Exeter Hall, that the work of the British and Foreign Bible Society was work which would "find its echo in eternity."

7. III VI Wrote home & posted 3 newspapers to different friends J.S. informed the Comee there was a cloud over his movements at present. He believed he should go to Natal but until the cloud was removed he did not see his way clear to move. We had a quiet time together after reading this evening when he said the Text came into his mind,—
"The Lord is thy Shield" and to all those who put their trust in Him He would be both a Sun and Shield. &

8. III VII Off to Aldershage for the week-end over, taking return tickets 2nd class 5/- ea where we had our quarters as before with Dr Heyther. We called on Price Welshman come in the room of Sargeant J.S. engaged to be at this place in the morning Afterwards on Pastor Independent L.M.S. to be at his coloured congregation in the afternoon took tea with the School when J.S. gave them an acct of his Northern travels

9. III I Ds birth-day
The services were well attended Especially the one in the morning at the C.M.Ch. in fact it was Heyther's usual Easter evening notice had been given out in the morning that J.S. was to preach There would be about 400 present & the same number at the coloured congregation: at the latter was about 150.

10. III II Left Aldershage by 7.45 train this morning Heyther accompanying to the Station We met Mrs Mitchell a grand-daughter of Dr Vander Kemp There is a daughter Still living Rec'd a letter from my wife with one from C.H.G.H. also one from father & Susan
A Communication from Wm Tallack takes up some hasty statements of cruelty to natives

1879 Roger Price. — Port Elizabeth to Atherstone

11. III P.E. left by rail to Ann Bain for Grahamstown en route to see the two young men Friends Butler & Price. I saw him off & then went a walk past the jail on the Uitenhage road way. On my return heard a gentleman — Mr Gordon, say to a man in a grey shocked drooling coat looking rather dusty — That is Mr Ritching one of the Quakers — going with the Union office they both followed him Gordon called out Mr France will now introduce Mr Price to Mr Ritching And this is the way I at last fell in with the Rev. Roger Price of the L.M.S. first pioneer of the organized Ujiji Mission & whose station of Molepolole we visited in his absence in England & spent a couple of hours with him in the evening.

16. III Peter France & I sat down together in my bedroom in the morning & read the Bible & we sat in silence till I prayed for ourselves as well as for those who are near & dear to us in the far distant land where both our wives & relatives are residing in the land of our birth. In the afternoon we took a short walk to the other side of the lake overlooking the river ravine or valley beyond to the little village of Walmer. In the evening we went to the Independent Chapel where Roger Price preached an effective sermon on the text — Strive to enter in

17. III Rain, welcome & the country set in about 5 in the evening

18. III Rain all day. Rose at 5 walked to the station and took ticket for Atherstone being the newly named place as far as the Grahamstown Railway is completed about 13½ miles short of the town / Second Class 15/6

A Cobbs coach was provided to carry passengers on to Grahamstown but as it would only accommodate eight there were 14 Incas one not having been able to secure a ticket before hand left at this terminus shed & not a house near or any accommodation on a miserable wet horrid day. The driver promised to send another cart for us, but it was election day in Grahamstown he said & other conveyances would be at hand then I found it wd be 2 hours drive into G. town & that it wd be 2 back, even if he started immediately making 4 hours & then 2 hours for us to ride in making 6 hours It was now one o'clock & I thought it could not take me more than 6 hours to walk it & wd be preferable to be wet with the rain & in exercise to be damp & shivering at a road side shed or shanty & nothing be had in the shape of refreshments So I set out to walk pelting rain all the while on the mountain tops almost driving me back at times & when within 3 miles of Grahamstown was overtaken by a bakers cart (Gourie's) & got a seat in it going straight to the Pages booking office & paying 4/- to secure a place in the Fort Beaufort coach on the morrow & then walked on so as to get a little warmed to Robt King's whose wife had been expecting me at noon whilst it was now about 5 o'clock. The children Lizzie Annie & Tommy were glad to see me & brought their slates to have a dog cat coach &c drawn

19. III IV. The rain did not clear away until near 9 this morning & I waited until then at Page's shop a whole hour before the coach a large size Cobb like our own was ready to start with its 14 passengers all inside but one

19. III IV Fort Beaufort – Alice – Love Dale

The roads were heavy & it was like ploughing our way through mud & pot clay so that an hour & three quarters had elapsed before we came to Bota's Hills where we changed our eight horses. When we ourselves were coming from here before we reached Grahamstown within the hour.

At Fort Brown we changed horses again & also at the toll gate by the Koonap river. At 4.30 we reached Jones Richmond Hotel Koonap Heights. We remained ¾ hour for dinner & went forward with fresh horses It was here D.S.P.G. joined the night of It soon became dark & we had to go slow to avoid the dangerous places so that it was 8.30 instead of about 6 before we got to Fort Beaufort where I Sharp had arrived the previous night & was watching for the arrival of this coach which stopped at Popes Commercial Hotel the principal one Whilst he had been set down at Meads where I joined him

20. III V Hired a cart & pair for 20/- & 4/- for four bundles of forage & dinner for the driver a Hottentot to take us to Alice. We had cold lunch at Mc Callum's Victoria Hotel where we arrived after 2½ hours & engaged beds, but on walking on to the Love Dale Institute they gave us such a cordial welcome & told us they should be offended if we stayed at the hotel, that we had to write a note & send for our bags. So we were the guests of Geddes & his wife the household managers who have been about a year in the Colony & have our meals in the large dining hall where they are all accommodated at different tables The highest or masters has a number of white boys with two coloured trainees is called the £40 table

F/ Beaufort to Love Dale or Alice is 14 miles

21. III VI We were shewn through the various trade & labour departments as waggon-making, printing & blacksmith & general carpentering. The girls department is a little distance from the boys on premises of its own where they are well educated & taught household work as washing & getting up linen, sewing & even tailoring. In the afternoon we called in company with Mr Moir M.A. to see Weir whose 50th Jubilee at the place was celebrated a few weeks ago He now lives in a nice little house with his son-in-law & daughter Young. The former on the staff of teachers. We made two or three other calls in like manner to aged Christians

22. III VII I. S. gave a Lecture to the Boys on Northern Lands Bennie who married a daughter of Mr Ashton drove us in the Institute made "Spider" to Macfarlane where a native is the ordained minister It lies 6 miles towards the Kat Berg range & is very near the Chumie mountain at the foot of which Tyo Soga was born. We were shewn a spot on the mountain with a few trees as land-marks where the missionaries use to meet for their quarterly meetings from Love Dale, Balfour & Gaikas Kop 8,000 feet. The Hog's Back were clearly seen a little more to the right The Kraals on their sides about 4 miles from Macfarlane visible from the road to King Williams Town tell the ruins of the first site of the Love Dale Mission In the evening we took tea with Young & his wife a daughter of Weir the old missionary who lives with them. He says at first the place was over-run with lions tigers & elephants. Their mission station was formed first then near by Fort Hare to accommodate its camp-followers the village of Alice was laid out adjoining the mission property

2, 3. III In the morning after breakfast we went through the various Scripture classes conducted in the usual manner of a Sunday School until near eleven when the Service begins. We went to the Free Church where the Fingoe is its usual pastor, notice had been given out of our being there long before the time numbers arrived from distances of 10 or 12 or more miles mostly on foot & it was found the place would be filled up without its usual attendance of the students (male or female) who contrary to their expectation had to remain at the school for a special service on their behalf. Not far short of 300 people would be seated. The usual preliminaries were gone through & then I Sharpe addressed the congregation the minister. Mzimba interpreting into Kafir, apparently with the feeling & power with which they were first uttered: and some audible emotion was visible

We were at the same place in the afternoon where I had been requested to combine a version of his northern experiences & Bible Society efforts for the benefit of those who lived at a distance could not be at the Lecture the other evening

From there we drove with Alice to Mr Moirs Free Church for the white inhabitants where the "Children's Church" was held attended on this occasion by several adults to hear the stranger amongst them was a daughter of Joseph Gwok's & her husband who were sorry we could not find time to visit them

It rained before we came out & got wet getting in the front seat with our friend Bennie who drove us in the Spider to his own house to tea

In the evening we went again to the native Free Church where all the boys & girls &c were gathered together Mr Moir conducting the service & Mzimba interpreting for D.D.C. Sharp. The room was nearly full, but not so crowded as in the morning & afternoon, as those living at a distance had gone home, & it was a dark & rainy night. D.S. again addressed them at some length It was a day of constant work, but I think he fully realised the promise As thy day is, so shall thy strength be. A little gathering of anxious ones was held in one of the schoolrooms afterwards

2,4. III " James Butler (a friend) & a Wesleyan Missionary Young from Heald Town rode over to dine here & see the Institute We drove over to see Slater & his wife (a daughter of Jos. Lynch) spending about half an hour with them over the afternoon cup of tea Before leaving D.S. offered prayer on their behalf. They seem to be worthy farmers who have the spiritual welfare of their native servants & others at heart in encouraging evangelists & teachers from Love Dale in their labour amongst them so much that sometimes 30 & more are gathered together in the barn on a First Day. Mr Bennie & Mrs Geddes were with us in the Spider whilst Mr Moir & Mr Geddes rode on horseback

In the evening D.S. addressed all those who helped in evangelising after which in the same room the monthly Educational Board prayer meeting conducted in a weighty manner. Our presence was duly acknowledged & between reading Hymns prayer offered by Mzimba, D.Sharp & Mr Moir. At the close I expressed

24. III Love Dale Departure

a few words of sympathy & love which commenced with a reply to their request to be remembered in prayer as they would remember us, at about this hour on this day of each week: which arrangement they had with Livingstonia & (D.) Stewart.

We then bid fare-well to most of them expecting to leave early in the morning.

The boys native court next came in session and 19 boys or students had to be dealt with

The Education Board gathered together & sent a request by our host Alex. Geddes that we would stay a day or two longer so as to be able to visit their out-Stations & further address the boys during the evening which D.S. thought we had better accept of.

25. III The Institute Spider was at the door at 9 o'clock III The students of both schools boys & girls were arrayed in two long lines on each side the broad walk. We were requested to step aside into the sitting room with the teachers & one of their number prayed for our welfare & safe journeying (Young). Saying we thank Thee O Lord for their visit do thou bless them abundantly & make them a blessing to others wherever their lot may be cast. There was a very precious cementing feeling amongst us which I believe we all shared in. I think I felt more of this binding feeling of love more than in any other place & after D.S. had given a little address I remarked upon this telling them that of all the sunny memories connected with our visits up & down in S.A. those to schools & Institutions like this were amongst the sunnies for King William's Town. Arrival side Landlady &c. 123

I amongst them all Love Dale shone out conspicuously & I should always retain a pleasing recollection of the few days I had spent amongst them Another shake of the head & we descended the flight of stone steps & drove through the living wall of dark-skinned smiling faces.
A boy from the place was our driver who was to bring back a gentleman from King William's Town
We passed close by Fort Hare now in ruins, at the out-skirts which was the occasion of the laying out of Alice as a town to accommodate the camp followers.
We passed by the Perie church & after a 4 hours drive of 24 miles outspanned at a road side hotel kept by John Crowe proceeding onwards again after 2 hours. We were nearly through dinner when we called our coloured driver in (a well dressed respectable speaking youth assistant to Dr Stewarts coloured Secretary Knose) & cut him a plate full of meat & vegetables & set him at the side near us. greatly to the unuttered but apparent disgust of our tall & fat land-lady, who came into the room shortly after & whilst standing at the side-board, turned her head aside, with looks of disapprobation at the proceeding & scarn at him. On receiving her payment of the bill she remarked "I charge 2/6 when a black man eats his dinner in the parlor, but if he gets it in the kitchen I charge less!" In other 2 hours we completed the remaining 16 miles to King William's Town

Girls out in girdles running after us crying Tekka sofa Tekka Bofa

King William's Town

but not before black clouds had gathered all around & begun to discharge their contents with streaks of lightening & heavy peals of thunder We drew up at Gleesons hotel, the largest in the town & had to be content with one small room with two little beds in it

— Lake Nyassa Boys at Lovedale

Some of the Lovedale boys are from a considerable distance & after breakfast one morning four of them from the shores of Lake Nyassa were called aside for us to see. They were learning English rapidly indeed two of them had studied awhile at the Blantyre Mission (Kolimbo & Evangeli by name) & two at the Livingstonia Mission - Generale & Kabito. Kabito when quite a little fellow & playing with his brother was stolen from the Kraal by the Mawiti, his mouth filled with meal, so that he could not scream & with two others, put into one bag & carried to (Mtyiyambo) a Portuguese village & sold for a slave. Here Dr Stewart fell in with him when calling there in the Ilala. They are all well conducted boys & if they become truly converted will be a power of good when they return to their native shores.

See Lovedale News Dec: 1878

26. III IV Rained heavily most of last night & cleared up this morning with a moist oppressive heat. I was going about most of the day gathering information concerning people routes & conveyances. Sharp was close at writing – (as usual!)

Between King Williamstown & Grahamstown the Post Cart fare is £3

King Williamstown to Panmure (East London) about 40 miles the railway fares are 10/6 8/6 & 5/3

I saw Alfred Alexanders wife who is a daughter of Wm Impey. A.A. is now settled here as an engineer & has an appointment to the town

The hospital & town hall are fine buildings The library is an unimposing building in a square block partly occupied by Solicitors offices

We left at 4 in the afternoon by train for Panmure expecting be only ½ hour on the way but it took us 4 hours including 20 minutes stay & change of carriages at Blaney junction. It came on rain again & it was quite dark as we groped our way to an hotel near the station (Wilsons Royal Hotel) where in a few minutes we had dinner & were not long after in bed

27. III IV We walked about town before breakfast & after & crossed the river by the ferry to East London (having taken tickets for £4 to Algoa Bay) & lunched at the Marine Hotel.

The surf was breaking high on the beach & on the sand bar at the mouth of the little river & the harbour master said it was doubtful whether a boat would be able to get through it without being swamped: however the life-boat was manned

27. III

East London

by eight lusty fellows guided by a good coxwain We got safely through the foaming & curling over billows with a comparatively small amount of wetting. A captain belonging to another ship had gone ashore 8 days ago & this was the first boat which had been able to leave the shore & take him to his floating home A shark in pulling one of his legs on Sidney ac'ps the thwarts which rather hurt his back & some one on his landing at the Bay jocularly remarked he had heard he had been thwarted in some of his designs.
We rolled at anchor all the afternoon & evening most unpleasantly

28. III Still rolling at anchor off East London

VI
29. III
VIII Weighed anchor at a ¼ past 10 this morning and in about 7 hours steamed as we past Port Alfred at the mouth of the Kowie river (the port for Grahamstown) and about 11.30 at night we cast anchor in Algoa Bay & in the morning noticed all the ships had double anchors out as though there had been a storm blowing.

30. III
X The sea was rather high & it was between 10 & eleven before a boat put off & took four of us ashore skilfully manouvering the boat through the breaking waves on to the sandy beach. Our bags had to pass the Customs & we called at the Union Office but P. F. had no letters for us & do suppose they are now accumulating at Durban.
P.S. went to bed on acct. of his back feeling painful & I was glad to lay down in quiet having been unwell since my wet walk & pulled down

30. III

with both diarrhoea & sea-sickness P. F. called in the evening & we had reading together & a little meeting in P. F.'s bedroom

Called together on Roger Price who read us a letter he had just received from his true friend Dodgshun dated 6th Jan.y 1879 in Mirambo's territory 300 miles short of Ujiji, which shews the troubles of the road very vividly

In the evening in company with P. France as guide called on N. Goezar coloured minister & on Stokes Baptist minister both of whom made waste P. S. to address their people tomorrow the former in the evening & the latter in the morning

6. IV

The Baptist meeting this morning not very large but over 100 of the coloured who listened attentively missionary Lapsie from Enon was there N. Goezar was not well & considered it quite a providential matter that P. Sharpe fell down to call upon him & take his place in preaching

We called on R. Price this wife who are in a day or two intending to commence their 2 months journey to their old home R. P. gave me a printed copy of his Private Journal whilst on the Ujiji journey

Busy packing up books to send off by post to various individuals in the Colony. - Late work

128 1879 Leave Port Elizabeth. Arrive at Port Natal

10. IV We have been busy packing up & have got our luggage removed from Jones Rudd & Co's to the Union Office to be ready against the arrival of the Danube expected tomorrow afternoon & to sail again immediately for Natal

11. IV Came on board the Union S.S. Danube anchored in Algoa VI Bay, at 11 this morning & weighed anchor at 5 afternoon

12 IV We had reached East London before daylight this morning VII & cast anchor between 4 & 5 - remaining till 11.45 - when we left with a lighter or large iron punt boat in tow which caused us to have to run only half speed for fear of drawing it under water. By 6 in the evening we passed the mouth of the R. Kei

13. IV At sunrise about six we passed close in front
I of the "Gates of the St. John" river, majestically steep rocks on either side 300 or 400 feet high from the water's edge. Here hippopotami are sometimes seen & occasionally go out into the sea at night as a passenger late living near for landing, informed us he had frequently seen them do & also that one recently killed this tough skin nearly 2 inches thick cut up into jamboks realised the sum of £40.

14. IV Cast anchor in Port Natal bay at 5 or 6 before day-II light this morning. After breakfast a steam tug came over the bar & landed us at the river jetty with, part of our baggage, on board. On the point there stood a tall white haired venerable looking pleasant man accosted & asked him if he were not a Dr Jones. On answering his name showed him his Mr. Jones' name written in his note book as one whom he must see early on & ask information concerning others: both that it a providential meeting

& H. C. remarked we often do not take sufficient notice of these little Providences & in return H.C. repeated his proverb "those who make the hand of Providence shall never want a Providence to make" He told us to leave our bags at his place in (Durban a couple of miles from the Point where a bus stopped & we should have to walk from there another 2 miles up to the Berea where our friend William Wynne Wesleyan minister & his wife from Harrismith were now residing. We did so in H.C.'s absence finding his sister at home who goes by the name of Auntie Cowey & is called a second (Dorcas for the kind deeds she performs. It was easter monday & she was just going out leaving no one in the place but she soon brought us a bun & some lime juice & water on the strength of which we went to the Post Office & got letters & then walked in the warm somewhat moist heat to the Berea reaching Wm Wynne's in about an hour & receiving a cordial welcome from him & his wife

In the afternoon W.W. drove us down to H.C's to bring up our bags.

W.W's little baby boy is very ill with what is somewhat common to children here thin white cylindrical worms about 6 in. long vomiting one every day or night, one made its way thro. the nostrils & some are occasionally passed in the ordinary way. There seems no accounting for it. The water not being entirely to blame or more so than the germs ordinarily floating in a semi-tropical & prolific moist atmosphere

We also called on the Palmers parents of Mrs Wynne.

1879 Durban. Musgrave Road Chapel

15. IV Mr Jenion W.W. drove us to Durban to live in West III Street & Main Street the Drift stand is, & we went to the Point where I remained all day trying to get our luggage unloaded from the lighter but of no avail until four o'clock when I got it by 5 stored in the Union Co's ware = = house: while R.S. had been making investigations about town have met for tea at the house of Henry Cowey His wife with their son & daughter, & was then home at the Berea in the dark A number of horses & soldiers & war material were landed at the Point during the time I was there

16. IV Again in Durban this morning calls of various IV individuals Robinson Ralph Stollery & others

Called in the morning Mr Chalker called We walked on & take tea with Mrs Smith thereon and niece & lately from Kimberley & then to the Musgrave Road Institution "Hall where R.S. preached to a small congregation about 20 the ex-mayor & Councillors being one of them On the way back W.H. looked last week I was feeling unwell & on from the illness of my little boy & threw away the Sermon I had prepared & began to speak as light impressing with "Bear ye one another's burdens & so fulfil the law of Christ" & spoke freely for 25 minutes & I know it reached some of them & was with life, it touched their sympathies & they felt sympathy with me

17. IV Josiah Tyler of the American Mission called on us V this morning & proposed to take us to see one of their three principal Training Institutes & mission stations - Adams - at Amanzimtoti named after its first missionary Having about 20 miles from Durban. We stopped to rest horses I being in the saddle & D.S. your conductor in an American spider holding two ones - at Isipingo where by the road side Lawrence Platt from Saddleworth has his house & sugar plantation. The canes will be ripe in two or three weeks. He & his wife & two daughters seemed interested when I informed them I had seen his brother Sidney in Kansas. After dinner D.S. read the 90th Psalm & knelt in prayer. We completed the remaining 8 miles of our journey by 4.30 The road was sandy & heavy but the vegetation was striking & fine & more tropical than anything we had hitherto passed through

We received a cordial welcome by William Ireland and Elijah Robbins the two resident missionaries. D.S. was quartered on the house of the former & I in that of the latter.
We all took tea at Mr I's who has a family of small children
The youngest a nice little girl who clung round my neck & gave me a series of kisses before she went to bed. Next day saw her next day gave me a "pretty fern" card to remember her by" with her name Meta written on it by her mother.

18. IV We visited the hives in the morning & in the VI afternoon D.S. gave his lecture on mother lands which I added a little concerning Australia & N. Zealand which D.S. said he was glad of & W. Ireland thanked us both. A meeting for worship was held shortly after. D.S. spoke through a native & a interpreter who had graduated at Howard Coloured University in Washington U.S.A.

American Missions

The American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions whose head quarters is at Boston &c, sailed five missionaries & their wives & Natal who sailed from Boston on 3rd October 1834 landed at Cape Town 5th Dec. 1835 Three of them Lindley Venable, and Wilson were instructed to establish a Mission in the interior amongst Mosekatse's people some where to 300 from Natal. The other three Grout, Champion & Dr Adams were directed to prosecute their labours amongst the Zulus under Dingaan.

The former set out & travelled 600 miles to Grigira Town where Wright & Hughes of the L.M.S. welcomed them to recruit their strength & hired oxen. They next travelled to Kuruman staying awhile with Mr. Moffat on 12th Jany 1836 Lindley & Venable went forward to choose a site leaving their wives & Mr Wilson at Kuruman. The following from the mission band was at a station in the vicinity of the Chief's residence which they named Mosika. Their however and the war between the Boers & Mosekatse broke up this portion of their mission & the interior. The Maritime missionaries reached Natal 31st Oct 1835 were received with kindness by Dingaan. He consented to their establishing a school at his residence, but refused them to make for Natal their head quarters until he could see what effect it had upon his people.

The following is a list of these Missions in 1864 and by comparing the numbers up to the present date 1879 they will have to be multiplied by 4 and at least 3½.

20. IV The large Wesleyan chapel in Durban is capable of containing 1000 persons. This morning there was considered to be fully 500 who listened to Mr Sharp's able address with much interest & delight. The same in the evening in the congregational Chapel of Mr Rouse

In the morning I sat by a Scotchman named Cullingworth & in the evening an old man from Leeds 30 years ago named Peter Donnox a deacon from Upper Head Row who walked up with us. He said Mr Fleming was a great friend of his & he was pleased to see his son. He also knew Mr Hawkins if she were related to me

21. IV We went by train to Phoenix Crossing station this morning 14 hours slow ride, where Henry Burns jr. met us with chaise for himself & for three for me & we rode 2 miles through sugar plantations to his house at Sunderland, Umhlanga, a sugar plantation with house garden & orchard round it. It will be 2 miles before the cane is ripe. We saw some young coffee shrubs & pine apples, bananas & plantains, & saw a tall skinny tree quite unlike that growing in Texas. After coffee J.P. knelt in prayer. We had a cup of tea & returned the same way by 2.20 train. Took tea with Mr Donnox & thence to the Presbyterian Chapel where I opened the meeting by reading 8th Romans & saying a little about silent worship & J.P. knelt in prayer & spoke for nearly ¾ hour. Rested on the full liberty of the Gospel accorded & took up Jesus' words & pointed the ch. read "if ye then be risen with Christ seek those things which are above". The Presbyterian military chaplain from Cyprus also spoke suitably & a good feeling was over the meeting

21. IV " At its close 8 or 9 people came up to shake hands with us & thus evince their interest & say they felt it to be a good meeting

22. IV " We went to Durban in the 8.30 tonic train & 9 with bags from there to the Point & got our luggage arranged all in a corner at the Union Co's warehouse

In the afternoon we went on horse-back to Henry Cowey's house 2 miles to Montpelier on the W. of the Berea to see Josiah Tyler & his wife who are staying there while unable to reside at their Impisini Station on account of the war

23. IV " W. Wynne's Magic lantern in evening

24. IV " By train to Bota's Hill nearly halfway to Pieter Maritzburg (8/- first class) & coach & six horses the remainder of the distance (20/-) completing the 54 miles between the two towns. We went on by coach 2 miles till it stopped at the proprietors hotel Welsch's, Half Way House where we had a good lunch for 2/- ea. We changed horses three times The first stage was up such steep hills as to be very severe on the horses The whole journey was thro' splendid high mountain scenery sometimes looking down in wooded kloofs, ravines & hill sides enough to turn one dizzy

We left Durban at 9, reached the Half Way House at 12.30 took 1/2 an hour for lunch & reached Mrs Bousfield's private boarding house just at 6 p.m. where Albert & Edward had engaged quarters for us & kindly assisted us in various ways. He was an old Ayton scholar & so well acquainted with us. They were both pleased with the meeting.

On our way we passed several encampments of soldiers on the march taking it by easy stages in accordance with the rains.

25. VII. IV Our first call this morning was on Sir Theophilus Shepstone. He only saw his wife who after a little conversation said her husband would be interested in seeing us if we could call again at 9 in the morning.

We next called on Mason Wesleyan Min. who freely entered into conversation about plans for Meetings offering the sermon portion of time on First day morning which was accepted thankfully & also suggested that after a short evening service to be agreed upon by all the ministers of different congregations; they should ~~afterwards~~ unite at a ¼ to 8 by our special invitation for a Meeting after the manner of Friends in the Wesleyan Chapel. Have put an advertisement in the Natal Witness accordingly We were to call again at 3.30 to meet the missionary

Also from their important Station of Edendale 7 miles distant said to be the most important M.S. in Natal.

We called on John D. Smith Presbyterian Minister who with John Gould Smith Presbyterian Min. who called on us in the evening proposed a joint meeting for 4th day evening next but which J.S. agreed on the understanding that the first part of it should be a Friends Meeting & then the others do as suited them.

We made other calls & were walking about all day

26. VII. IV In the morning we spent half or ¾ hour with Sir Theophilus Shepstone who imparted in a free manner a large amount of information on Zulu matters

Mark Hutchinson brother of Dr Jno of London & cousin of Wm of Guiby called with his son They were passing thro. with 7 wagons & saw the advertisement of "Society Friends." He talks of going to N. Zealand. In afternoon Nellist called with a two ox cart to take us out to his place to tea 3 miles off & we walked back VB. *

Sir T. Shepstone & Cetewayo.

Sir T. said at this. the Zulus Chiefs had so many wives as soon as it was known that one of them was in the family way She was killed till the wife managed to conceal herself till the child was born both were killed. This was to prevent pretenders to the throne cause the reigning Chief to be more secure even from the jealousy of his own children. This state of things continued till the time of Panda who was prevailed upon to put a stop to it when his sons each desired to be the recognised paramount Chief. Sir T. S. was asked by them as they said on accr. of his rank & influence to settle the difficulty for them he agreed & they made solemn promises that ~~they~~ all killing & butchering which was still so frequent without any cause or trial should cease the would not put any one to death without the consent of the Colonial Authorities. This promise he kept for some time. For the first occasion of his breaking this it he sent word to the Colonial Authorities that he had put so & so to death for reasons that even the Authorities at the Colonial Office thot. were sufficient causes & the thing having been done they thought it best to let it bye: At the same time thinking it was the beginning of a of despair & independent course of action on the part of the Zulu King. It was not long after this that having given one of his older regiments of soldiers leave to marry & disapproved of certain young women who from discrepancy of age & other causes did not relish them as wives & refused to marry them had all those young women cruelly & mercilessly put to death & their bodies laid where four roads met. Some of them not dying at once were succoured by their parents or friends, who,

for this merciful interference were also killed.

In S.A. says the thirst for blood & desire to kill is inbred in the Zulu character. I have a Zulu servant who wants to be off to the war saying "why this war will be over & I shall have killed only one they will think me a man. I must kill some one if it is only a woman."

Friends Day Meetings

27. IV 1 A large congregation at the Wesleyan Chapel this morning F.S. spoke during the sermon time at some length a good feeling seemed to privade the whole. We dined with the minister Mason & afterward looked in at their school of about 300 or 400 white children. At the same time Mrs Mason was conducting the school in another building for the coloured children. We took tea with Jamieson who at his Italian warehouse keeps the Bible & Tract depot One of his little boys was off at the camp a couple of miles away delivering tracts to the soldiers who he said were pleased to receive them We next went to the Presbyterian Ch. No 2 where F.S. again spoke as expected to between 200 & 300 people We had only a few minutes spare time in which to get to the Wesleyan Chapel again for our own advertised meeting at which there would be fully 400 present Read at the opening the 3rd Ch. of the 1st Epistle of John Then explained our practice of silent worship for the past 200 years which was at once entered into in a solid manner till F.S. rose & commenced to speak with one of the texts I had quoted in support of silent waiting. Kept silence before me O what did he not to people renew their strength & the people seemed to feel what was said. P.S. soon after knelt in prayer. I said a few words which had come over me since seeing the Chapel with the words of our Saviour Simon Satan hath desired to have you, but I have prayed for thee that thy faith fail not. That tho the tempters power was strong the power of Christ was stronger, to whom we might come in living faith &c. Another short pause P.S. closed the meeting

Edendale

28. IV Six hours ride over 7 miles of country in company " with Allsopp the resident missionary brought us to Edendale I rightly named it is, for it is a fruitful spot of 6000 acres surrounded by mountains forming a pleasing view from varying elevations. In the old Dutch occupation it was the farm of Pretorius for whose head when he became a rebel 1000 the sum of £500 pounds was set. His house which we visited is still standing the meeting house has had an addition which at the present moment is used as the infant school department. For some time the Farm was vacant till purchased by Mr *Allison of the Wesleyan miss. Society who divided it into small farming allotments sold them to the Kafirs who still hold them as their own absolute freeholds. Many have become rich in cattle & other property to the value of £4,000 there in well built square cottages The Chapel which cost £1000 was built & paid for by themselves there is a good mission house. A miller named Turbeton from Leeds resides on one of the plots

on a long lease. There are three pair of stones turned by a water wheel 16 ft. Diameter & about 5 feet broad being equal to 24 horse power. Two of his sons are married Edwin & Charles live on separate plots & good houses near by. & almost the whole of the furniture & wood work is made on the spot partly by native artisans

We lunched at the Mission house with Mr & Mrs Allsopp & the governess: but they told us the Miller was hospitable & liked to meet his hospitality to any visitors to the Edendale Mission & there had been an understanding that the rights of hospitality should be equally given to them, in accordance with which we were to lodge at the larger house by the mill, whither we went in time for tea & found all the family just returned from P.M. Burg whither they had gone to see the newly arrived dragoons & Lancers destined for service at the Zulu seat of war.

We attended the native service in the evening when between 300 & 400 attended one of their number acting as interpreter for Mr Sharp both in prayer & preaching. At the supper table our friend Mr Hudson who was invited to attend related an incident of his Pondo or Amapondo missionary life at Palmerton 20 miles from the St. John River or about 8 miles from which place was the residence of Farku paramount Chief of the Pondos who at this time was between 80 & 83 years of age.

It had been a long time of drought which fell heavily on the land the people & the cattle. The Rain-makers had had cattle given them for their incantations & impostures but no rain came: & they still asked the chief for more cattle. But losing faith in him & their want of success, he said, no more cattle will I give yo. They pleaded that if one particular kind of ox were given to them they would then be successful. But Farka replied, not another head shall you have, — nobody can make the rain but the "Umfundisi" (Missionary) of God; no more cattle for you; I will turn to the Missionary; I have done with you! And he sent some councillers to the Umfundisi (as the missionary was called in Kafir) desiring him to appoint a special day of prayer for rain. The Missionary sent thereby that such a word from Farka gave him great joy: that he had seen the sore distress that the drought had occasioned in the land: & had already made preparations on the Saturday, that Sunday and the following Monday should be the special day of prayer for rain: & that he should expect to see the young Chief Umgwikella (Umtekula as pronounced) present on monday the special day.

On the Sunday, 3 services were arranged; for the hours of 6 in the morning, 11 in the forenoon, and 3 in the afternoon. In the afternoon, many of the heathen attended, & at half past three, while prayer was going on, it suddenly became gloomy I caused them to look up & see that the clouds were gathering fast, and in a few minutes drops were falling: the heathen portion, well knowing what the indications now were, began to pull their skins around them & beat a retreat home, for fear of a wetting; but none of them could get away fast enough, for the rain came rapidly down; the prayer meeting for rain, was ended by a devout thanksgiving for the blessing given! It continued to rain heavily over the Monday and the following Tuesday, so that neither the young Chief Umkula, nor any of the councillors, were able to leave their houses for the Monday's services.

It was on the Tuesday, that a group of head-men were talking as they looked at the welcome falling rain, & some of them said, Whose rain is this? Whose rain is this? & said some of the heathen, it is (Dyga's) rain. (Now (Dyga was the name of the heathen Rain-maker;) and there came the quick reply, It is Allsopp's rain. And different voices were raised some contending it was Allsopp's rain, & others it was (Dyga's; till the aged Chief drew near, and said, No! it is God's rain; it is the rain of Allsopp's God! With that testimony he drew in the damp air, which in his delicate state of health caused his death, before the light of the next morning.

On the Wednesday morning very early, a young councillor came to Mr Allsopp's; who, surprised at seeing any one come to him so early, said, What! so early? What is the matter so early in the morning? Farka is gone! What? Farka is gone! Tell me plainly, is the life out of him? Yes, and Umkula (Umkpuikela) said I was to come to you first. Mr Allsopp lost no time, but at once, after a hasty cup of coffee, ordered his horse to be saddled, & with his son & groom, rode quickly to the Chief's village. He said, —

Par'ka the Pondo Chief

I had not gone two miles before I saw evidences of what was expected: for they consider a chief must have company on his journey to the land of spirits; & to prevent his having to perform it alone, sometimes 150, or 200 men & women are killed. Occasionally it is known before hand who will be killed at the death of the chief, & these will often move their residence out of his jurisdiction, & so save their lives. On the present occasion consternation had seized every breast, & on the hill sides for a long distance I could see groups of Kafirs here & there, in great fear, not knowing but some of them would be murdered by the Witch Doctors, as intended victims. And such is the miserable custom, that if they murdered the chiefs own brother, he would have to be sacrificed. I rode on without speaking to anyone till I came near the village, & saw a large fig & Diamond Sweet to it with my son, leaving my horse with the groom, a little way off. I sat down on the log: A burden seemed to hang over my soul: & presently a messenger came to say that the young Chief Umgunkla would be with me soon. I then saw that the Kraal was full of people & their new Chief was with them. That something was going on. Presently Umgunkla approaches & I saw tears roll down both his eyes, as he said — I — have no — father — to-day. Will you — also — promise to be — my father — in his stead. I promised & said — This is the day of your power; how will you begin? What is the word that shall go out to the whole of Natal? What is the word that shall go out to the Queen of England? Is this to be a day of life or of death? Will you be a chief of mercy or a chief of blood? And I stood in silence waiting for his answer; When he said – Umfundisi; not one shall die! I said, I believe you Chief; I go home with this great word of comfort. If you want me send for me.

Just before, he had said to me – "You will see father? I said yes. He said to a man, take him. He took me to the hut & I crept in. There was the late chief, seated, as in life, on the ground, in the act of taking snuff with his spoon; forming a circle with his wives & waiting women, for some of them did not know but they would be doomed as company for the departed Chief to the land of spirits.

The chief went back to the assembly in the kraal & related what the Missionary had said, and his own promise in reply, which took them by surprise. There were chiefs & head men there with sufficient power, had they chosen to exert it together; who, at such a juncture, with the pretext of so extraordinary a departure from established custom, could have deposed him & appointed another in his stead. But, none dare say it should not be as Umqikela had said. Thus, no blood was shed on the occasion, excepting by some over-zealous fellows, who at the moment of the death of the Chief, took advantage of the opportunity to kill a man who had rendered himself obnoxious to all

The Wanyans were the only mipsionaries Unyikeda had till H Callaway thought to go & establish a mipsion amongst them also The Chief asked him "Who are you? What mipsionaries are you, we dont know any but our own Wesleyan mipsionaries & we dont want any others." "I" said Callaway, I will tell you what we are, you take a potatoe or a fruit & you cut the peel off and throw it away; but you keep the inside fruit to eat. now, the others are the peel and we are the inside fruit. "Ah" said the Chief that wont do: (Do you mean to tell us that you are better than our mother (Mrs Jenkins) Your father (mentioning others also) No, you cant be better than they, we dont want you!

"This incident was told us by Henry Callaway was on a visit to Mr (Lower mipsionary of the W.M.S. at Rokotad when son of Mr Lowers congregation came to him & told him Callaway had been telling them, the Lower their Mipsionary was not a minister at all & telling up the Principal Ch. as the only one with sundry like statement. Mr Lower asked him if he had said these things reported of him. H.C. replied that he had said "I shall pray for you as long as you are outside the true Ch same as I do for all bad women and sinners!"

Is not this insufferable, from one once a Friend.

We attended the Native Service at 7 before breakfast this morning lasting about an hour. About 200 would be present & J.S. again addressed them through an interpreter

After breakfast we looked over the mill & called on the millers sons who on the way told us of his 29 years residence in Natal and early struggles We next inspected the schools which took up the morning. They dont know English so well as at some schools in the "Old Colony", but they are pretty well up in geography

Mr Allsop drove us back to Pietermaritzburg in the afternoon

Isaac Sharps lecture in the evening was a success the Congregational Chapel being full. 1. V mo. We have met with half a dozen members of our own Society & several who have been more or less connected with us. Joseph Beckover now acting as an Agent has called once or twice. He was a colliery owner at Wigan: is a distant cousin of the Beckovers of Wisbeach, & cousin of J Harris. He is active in the Temperance cause

We dined with a young man from Middlesbro of Middleh with known to F.B. who has charge of the Medical Hall in the absence of Dr Gordon in England. The young surgeon Ward.

We took tea with W. L. Taylor & his wife: the former a Friend & old Sidcot scholar at the time of Josiah Evans

2.V.VI We left Maritzburg this morning at 11 o'clock from the Post Office in the Mail Cart which runs through Richmond to Rockstad, taking our places for Ixopo drift In 1/2 hour we reached Umlazi R. where we change horses four driver already overprimed with liquor went at it again & again & finished off stopping only 1/4 hour lost 3/4 hour Starting again was very dangerous going & kept with the reins in his hands over dangerous places, & we were not sorry to change him at Richmond where we arrived at 2.30 dined & left at 3, having over done very grand Hooken hills reaching the Umkomanzi R. about 5 which we crossed by means of a punt, each passenger, paying 1/- to the keeper

P Maritzburg to Richmond is 30 miles Richmond to Ixopo is 35 miles Total days ride = 65 miles

We arrived at Ixopo drift Grants hotel soon after 8 with cold feet from the night air & learned that our destination for Elbert & Emma Clarke's new station was about 20 miles further away & made enquiries for conveyance but could procure none, called on the magistrate Stewart with the Colonial Office introduction & he kindly volunteered the loan of one horse & saddle & promised a police-man & messenger as guides & baggage bearers for the morrow.

3.V.VII With the magistrates horse ridden by Mr. and myself on a miserable skinny one the only one procurable by our landlord at 15/- a month all men had gone from here to the seat of war; we

Rock Fountain Expo

departed with our two Rapids at 10.30 riding thro the country sometimes by a path & sometimes without a track of one hour & then going as the path led through meadie patches, once or twice crossing a waggon track. At 1.30 we came in sight of a farm owned by Foster & Stanley called Shamrock Farm in the district of Medstead, where we off saddled & having a cup of introduction were invited to a cup of coffee in the house for from home & they had been baking their own bread but were ashamed to offer it, but I.S. got a raw egg.
In an hour we started again crossing the Vedder Mountain in about two miles & near Sardis Town came in sight of Mc Kenzies Farm house, where we enquired the road, & there was just light enough left, as he very kindly walked on a few yards with us to assist & round to see some bee hive huts which he pointed out a mile in the distance as Albert A. Emma Clark's embryo missionary station. Albert Clark soon came up & gave us a welcome to his place & his wife we found in the circular hut busy preparing supper with her two little girls the eldest 3½ around her. We were shortly introduced to one of the huts, the left one, which was to be our bed-room & had a very refreshing wash. Just 6 o'clock & then we got in, the sun had been gone more than ½ an hour so that with the glowing on accl. of our dresses we felt it cool & that cold feel & till bed time.

4. V Our Posts having been here scarcely more than I three months have not had time & means to get thoroughly settled down yet have not commenced regular services for want of a building to assemble in but a stone one will soon be commenced. C.S. has with his own hands commenced building a little stone cottage with a little Kapri help he has a well.
In the afternoon the McKenzies were invited as usual to come down to a little service held in the living-hut, when Mr Parker read a chapter, addressed the company ending with prayer in which he was followed by E. Clark.

5. V. We took a look about the place to see what was II going on & in the afternoon we had a cup of tea with the McKenzies when a wedding present of plated tea service was used for the first time

Elbert Clark had the misfortune to lose his parents when quite young & not being very well treated by an elder brother left him he would leave the house if he did time again without a just cause. Clara L. Bedford was visiting on one occasion at his brothers & learning that things were not very comfortable for him or his sister who generally took his part, advised him to try & bear it patiently; but, being beaten again that night he told Mrs B. he was going away in the morning. Accordingly at the age of about 12 years he set out & arrived by rail in London with no more than 5/- in his pocket. He accosted a policeman & told him his circumstances who seemed thereby to become interested in him. He told him his mind & how he longed to get work & how there he was. At first the policeman advised him to go back home to his brothers but finding that was not palatable offered him a room in his own house wherein to lodge on payment of 2/- a week in advance, which was at once closed in with. He next applied to W. H. Smith & Son's who was the first as a press boy in Fleet Street, Blackfriars & Ludgate Hill Rly. Stations with "To-days London Papers" being ahead & nearest he was promoted to the book-stall & kept the confidence of his employers. But in time he had a desire to be a missionary & went through a college course with this view. At its completion he was asked if he would go to S. Africa. Being drawn there he replied in the affirmative. They also asked if he could get married & when he told his interrogator, Mr. Spurgeon, quickly (yes). & who asked him & who was the lady elect, he said I have not asked her yet, whereupon Mr. Spurgeon laughed aloud. Well he said I have not asked her, but I feel sure she'll have me. Now he had seen Emma Fothergill (daughter of Samuel Fothergill of (Carrington) a la Ragged School meeting not very long before & said to himself I am first & last for her. She's the wife for me. Now she was engaged to be a missionary for India: but E. C. said he believes the India engagement would fall through & that she was to be his wife. The India engagement did fall through thro no fault of hers, & after an engagement of three weeks the pair were married & went to the north to see the bride's relations previous to sailing for South Africa.

They left England about 1874 to help in forming a new Mission among the Amagcalekas Kaffirs. After the Mission had been established, its founder, Major Malan connected it with the United Presbyterian Church. Now E. & H. joined the mission with the understanding that it was not to be associated with any particular denomination & reluctantly withdrew from it when its character was thus changed, altho. its new proprietors were desirous of retaining their services.

(1876.) They thought it right to adhere to their original purpose of working an unsectarian mission amongst the heathen looking only to God for means to begin & carry it on, feeling sure that if their plans were for the glory of God, He would supply all their needs for the work.

After some care they arrived at the intended spot on the 10th June 1875 whereon to commence their new labours at Ikwezi Lamaci 6 miles east of Harding, 35 miles east of Kokstad & south of Hancocks Drift on the northern boundary of Pondo Land, on the river Umtamvuma. Here they soon had fruit to their labours & became attached to the place. The first convert was a heathen woman Masikatali who threw off her heathen dress charms & ornaments & wished to be dressed like the missionaries wife. Brought a piece of cotton asking for help to make it up. She was informed that change of dress & not change of heart. But her heart was already changed & she said she liked the new dress for God. "I like it for God." Fresh converts were being added & the mission prospering when at the close of 1876 E.C. was desired by the L.M.S. to join the organisation for its Central African mission at Ujiji. They felt that if the Almighty had need for them there, they were willing to go but dare not leave their present sphere of labour until He should provide some one else to carry it on. The L.M.S. despatched a missionary to Nkunezi Zanzibar & informed E.C. they had already sent his outfit & on to Zanzibar to desire were they of securing his services for the Ujiji expedition. His wife was to reside in England for the present. He set out with the expedition but not intending to remain on its permanent staff after its settlement. But fever & several times prostrating him down, together with dysentery & chronic diarrhœa warned him that his life would soon be sacrificed if he remained in such a dangerous climate & he was obliged to withdraw. His wife joined him in Natal from England & they have been on their present spot only about 3 months

He was of the same mind as the other missionaries that the proper plan was first to establish intermediate stations before pushing on so far as Ujiji. Mullens was highly displeased with R.P. & himself & still withholds £50 for his travelling expences to Natal & a balance of £18 dito of his wifes from England which is only in accordance with similar conduct we have heard of said Dr M. from various quarters &c. &c. was enabled to purchase this small parcel of land from a farmer as his own freehold without coming on any mission funds says he now feels he has entered upon his life's work. Surrounded by a dense heathen population who have never before had the Gospel preached to them: but are desirous of having instruction he intends to go about evangelising from village to village; judging it a better plan than encouraging large numbers immediately on the Mission station. He considers a M.S. is often a mere asylum of refuge for those who have committed crimes & escaped justice at the hands of their chief: for a Mission Stn is looked upon in the light of a city of refuge both by Chiefs & their people.

Some of the Chiefs said to C.C. we dont want your doctrine, but we want a school, we want our children to be taught, so that when they go to town they wont get cheated thro' ignorance. In the school they will be taught the truths of the Gospel, many of the parents cannot help being influenced by it already the very presence of a missionary near their villages has caused all within a certain radius to suspend their field labours on the sabbath day.

6. V III Elbert Clark accompanied us on our return to ~~Richmond~~ Ixopo leading a horse with our bags balanced in two sacks over its back. We returned pretty much the same way as we went, over country as there is no very direct wagon road. We walked our horses all the way & got to the Ixopo hotel again by four o'clock. After a cup of tea together & an hours rest E.C. returned at 5 intending to ride quick 1 one horse the first half the other the 2nd half & so accomplish the journey in little over 3 hours.

We next called on Stewart the magistrate with his horse. He asked us to stay tea but we declined as his lady was from home, so he volunteered to accompany us half way back on foot & the hotel lest we should be lost in the dark.

They are calling a few farms or rather as our guide put it at Richmond "Here" a jail a town, after the magistrate — Stewart's Town.

It was rather a warmer sleeping in the hotel than in the huts of the three nights previous.

7. V IV The mail cart from Kokstad drove up this morning with just two vacant seats which we availed ourselves of starting as soon as all had had their breakfast & arriving in Richmond again about 3 in the afternoon! the conveyance going no further till morning.

The Wesleyan Indaleni M.S. is visible on rising ground 2 miles off & we set out to walk to it: but in the middle of a stream with our shoes & socks off E.S. suddenly turned back saying well I have had enough of this seeing we should have to come back in the dark. There was yet another stream to cross. We could get neither horses nor cart to take us there so gave it up and spent the evening writing

Richmond has been a place for about 20 years, has two stores one of which has been built 10 years & one hotel, but I can't get to know its inhabitants further than that, in case of a Zulu raid, in 2 hours they could muster 60 able bodied men. They are erecting two laagers or forts for fear of the Zulus.

We rose soon after 5 this morning & with just a cup of tea departed in the mail cart at 6.30 for Maritzburg. At a place called Estcourt where we changed horses there was a Kaffir store, the room was mud with snake skin rugs & buffalo horns 20 feet long are not uncommon but as they don't attack men they are not much feared.

We got into Maritzburg again about 9.30 A.M.

Extracts of Letter written to Elizabeth

I have posted thee a letter which goes off tomorrow, since which I have received thy two very welcome letters no. 35 & 36 written from the South & both of which I handed to Sharp to read. We told him as we had a walk out this evening together, I did not know whether Elizabeth's patience would hold out longer than mine after we had got to America. He paid well, she was thrown out two or three times lately & How knows there is that friend James Buckhouse Cotton of Tasmania who wants to go. (And of whom I X. saw into him a year while ago.) I only want the right thing to be done & I dont see that it is for me to take any further initiative at present. — I need not say how pleased I shall be to be with thee in our own home, when the right & proper time does come, before that I feel sure thou does not want me. — I am intending to shew this to Isaac Sharp before closing it —

My dear friend, Thy Langley gives me this time & place — I feel for thee in this great severance, and I feel also, that the journey is not yet over — allusion has been made to this return 3 or 4 times, and against that mind. I would not have him start — before thy setting, do not fail to endeavour to see & feel what is for the best for you both. Very much will I believe depend on thyself in this matter.
With my love and sympathy
I am sincerely thy Fo Isaac Sharp

He had a nice little gathering in the room of the Free Mason's Hall this evening. Few of us members & others sitting down to tea, after which F.S. gave them an interesting acct. of Rufus King's career from boy hood to the present time. We then settled down in a meeting capacity & believe it was felt to be a solemnizing time by all. Our great hope is that they will continue to meet on 2nd day mornings at 11 as desired by Josh Peckover & somewhat acquiesced in by Sayler & Malcomson

DAY OF HUMILIATION AND PRAYER.

WHEREAS this Country is at present suffering, not only from an outbreak of Native Tribes on the Frontier, but from the effects of a very Severe and Protracted Drought, in which calamities all Christians cannot but recognize the afflicting hand of God, we, the undersigned, hereby call upon our Fellow-Christians of all religious bodies, to unite in humbling themselves before the Lord, and in earnestly beseeching Him that He would be graciously pleased, not only to restore peace on our borders, but also to shower down upon those portions of the country, now suffering from a drought so alarming as to threaten a famine, an abundant rain.

Past experience has shown us that, when His people "cried unto the Lord in their trouble, He delivered them out of their distresses."

We would venture to remind all who are not directly suffering from our present troubles, that it is their duty, as well as their privilege, to offer up their intercessions in behalf of their suffering brethren.

We, therefore, earnestly entreat all our Fellow-Christians to unite on THURSDAY, the 7th February, in humbling themselves before Almighty God, supplicating Him to stay His afflicting hand, and mercifully to restore peace and prosperity to the Country.

Cape Town, 25th January, 1878.

H. WHITE, Commissary to the Bishop of Graham's Town
W. F. GOHL, Minister of the Evangelical Lutheran Church
H. HAHN, Minister of the German Lutheran Church
A. MURRAY, Moderator of the Synod of the Dutch Reformed Church
S. HARDEY, Superintendent of Wesleyan Missions
W. THOMPSON, Minister of the Congregational Church
J. M. RUSSELL, Minister of the Scottish Church.

The Oudtshoorn correspondent of the Beaufort Courier, in writing of the visit to that town of some gentlemen belonging to the Society of Friends, who are travelling through the colony on a semi-religious tour, finishes thus:—"They travel most comfortably, attended by a cart and four mules carrying commissariat stores, among which is a clever contrivance for cooking a dinner while the cart is in progress. It is also worthy of note that the party has secured the services of an excellent cook. Their mules are in wonderfully good condition, considering the state of the country. Their visit happening on the Day of Humiliation, somewhat distracted attention from the proper subject of the day.

Port Elizabeth Observ

BASUTOLAND AND ITS SURROUNDINGS.

Considerable uneasiness has been felt within the last day or two regarding the outlook in South Africa. Despite the success that has attended our gallant representatives in the field, the crisis is by no means a thing of the past. The Boers have the fullest possible knowledge of the country, and consequently their movements are of the most trying order. Their recent attempts to entrap our men have awakened the gravest anxiety at home, and caused no little concern amongst Lord Roberts and his staff. Our sketch map should at the moment be of unusual interest, depicting, as it does, Basutoland and the adjacent country. Practically the whole of the places at which engagements have occurred are indicated. On the north, Basutoland is bounded by the Caledon River, which is a branch of the Orange River; on the south by Cape Colony; on the east by Natal; and on the west by the Orange Free State. The Basuto border is of exceptional value from a strategic standpoint. At Wepener severe fighting has taken place between Gen. Brabant's division and the Boers, and we must not overlook the uncertainty of the friendliness of the Basutos towards Great Britain. Wepener is a decent little town of less than 700 people very near the border. It is agreeably situated near the Caledon, and is sixty-three miles by road from Bloemfontein, fifty-two from Ladybrand, and seventy-two from Aliwal North. De Wets Dorp is forty miles from Bloemfontein and twenty-three from Wepener. Previous to the beginning of hostilities there was a scheme for the making of a railway from Wepener to the capital of the Orange Free State by way of Thaba'nchu and Sannas Post, with a branch to Ladysmith and a probable extension as far as Aliwal North.

The pre-eminent chief of Basutoland is now a person holding a unique appointment. Lerothodi (Loritori is the pronunciation) is shown in our smaller illustration. He traces his great influence from the fact that he is a representative of the house of Moshesh, who laid the base of the Basuto nation, and whose spirit is invoked as a kind of deity. His tomb and stronghold, Thaba Boseige, or Mountain of Light, are kept especially sacred. To swear with uplifted hand by Moshesh is the solemn oath of the native, and may frequently be heard in the Law Courts of the Orange Free State. Lerothodi is a daring yet skilful leader. His ability was clearly demonstrated in the course of the "Gun War," an attempt by Cape Colony to disarm the Basutos, and in which the Colony suffered failure. General Gordon was despatched to arrange the terms of peace, but without success. Peace was, however, ultimately declared, the Basutos being left independent, with the exception of a nominal British protectorate.

Basutoland has a population of 217,000, but a small proportion of which are white men—traders, missionaries, and officials of the British Government. The latter gentlemen wield a signal influence over the Kaffirs—an influence often laughed at by Dutchmen and unthinking English folk. It is not lawful for any white person to permanently establish himself in the country, and mining or prospecting is strictly prohibited. If the Basuto chiefs and people have their way, there will be no Uitlander question in the Lesuto, the country's correct native name. The Basutos are extremely jealous of any military interference. During an epidemic of rinderpest, a small guard of the Cape Mounted Rifles was posted on the border, for quarantine purposes. It created great alarm, and a son of Lerothodi was sent south with a strong force as a countermove. The C.M.R. was obliged to retire further to avoid an outbreak. The Basutos treat with suspicion both Briton and Boer. If the truth must be told, the Kaffir anywhere has no love for the white man of whatever nationality. The state of feeling nursed by the Basutos towards the British may be gleaned from the following: The Basutos, being conquered by the Orange Free State, were driven to the mountains and their land was annexed for agricultural purposes. Moshesh, whose men for years had been the aggressors and had raided and murdered white people on the border, invoked the interference of the British. His prayer was acceded to, and our Government gave the Kaffir back his land, except a small strip along the Caledon River, which they allowed the Dutch to retain, thus depriving the Free State of the fruits of victory, a circumstance the Boers have never forgiven, and placing the Basuto nation under an obligation to Britain as its protector. On the other hand, the Basutos have never become reconciled to the loss of part of their territory, and cherish the hope that they may some day be able to resume its ownership.

The behaviour of the Basutos at times like the present naturally creates apprehension, for they are undeniably an increasing danger to civilisation. A correspondent in the Graphic suggests that "the Imperial Government take advantage of their superfluous military ardour by enlisting them for service, say in China and India. The Basutos would make excellent lancers. They are born fencers, and expert in the use of the assegai, which is nothing more than a light lance. They are splendid rough riders, and altogether would require far less training to turn them into cavalry than ordinary European recruits. Their term of service over, they would return impressed with the might of England, having learned loyalty, and having acquired habits of cleanliness and order. This would be one of the best ways of elevating the race, and at the same time increasing British influence and prestige among them, and, of course, diminishing the danger to the surrounding States and Colonies. It is possible that a body of ten or fifteen thousand troops could be recruited."
